In 1605 Oxford was still a walled city, but several colleges had been built outside the city walls (north is at the bottom on this map).

There are thirty-nine colleges of the University of Oxford (including Reuben College, planned to admit students in 2021)[81] and six permanent private halls (PPHs), each controlling its membership and with its own internal structure and activities.[14] Not all colleges offer all courses, but they generally cover a broad range of subjects.

The colleges are:

 All Souls College	 Green Templeton College	 Lady Margaret Hall	 New College	 St Anne's College	 St Hugh's College	 Wadham College
 Balliol College	 Harris Manchester College	 Linacre College	 Nuffield College	 St Antony's College	 St John's College	 Wolfson College
 Brasenose College	 Hertford College	 Lincoln College	 Oriel College	 St Catherine's College	 St Peter's College	 Worcester College
 Christ Church	 Jesus College	 Magdalen College	 Pembroke College	 St Cross College	 Somerville College
 Corpus Christi College	 Keble College	 Mansfield College	 The Queen's College	 St Edmund Hall	 Trinity College
 Exeter College	 Kellogg College	 Merton College	 Reuben College	 St Hilda's College	 University College

The permanent private halls were founded by different Christian denominations. One difference between a college and a PPH is that whereas colleges are governed by the fellows of the college, the governance of a PPH resides, at least in part, with the corresponding Christian denomination.

The six current PPHs are:

 Blackfriars	 Campion Hall	 Regent's Park College	 St Benet's Hall	 St Stephen's House	 Wycliffe Hall
