Hyde Park

Hyde Park is one of the largest parks in central London.

It is famous for its Speakers' Corner.

The park has become a traditional location for mass demonstrations .

One of the main sights of the park is the lake Serpentine.

Green Park

The Green Park is a park in the City of Westminster, central London. It lies between London's Hyde Park and St. James's Park.

You can find Canada Memorial and the Constance Fund Fountain .

St. James's Park

It is the oldest of the Royal Parks of London.
The park was named after a leper hospital dedicated to St. James the Less.
The park has a small lake,
St. James's Park Lake, with two islands,- West Island, and Duck Island, which is named for the lake's collection of waterfowl

Regent's Park

Regent's park contains Regent's College and the London Zoo. It provides wide range of facilities and amenities including gardens, a lake with a heronry, waterfowl and a boating area, sports pitches, and children's playgrounds.

The Open Air Theatre is located in the park. There is Regent's College with several institutes of higher education .

Kensington Gardens

Kensington Gardens are the private gardens of Kensington Palace.
You can see the Albert Memorial .
The park also contains the Elfin Oak .
The park is also famous for the statue of Peter Pan , the character of the book „Peter Pan in Kensington Gardens“ which is written by J. M.
Barrie.
