National flag

The Australian national flag has been in official use in this form since 1909 but was confirmed by the Queen only in 1954. It shows, on a blue ground, the Union flag in the top left-hand corner, below this the seven-pointed white star of the Commonwealth and to the right the five white stars of the Southern Cross.

Coat of arms

The Australian coat of arms, adopted in 1912, shows the country's two national animals, the kangaroo and the emu, supporting a shield with the badges of the six states (clockwise from top left): New South Wales (St George's Cross), Victoria (Southern Cross), Tasmania (red lion), Western Australia (black swan) and South Australia (maggie). Above the shield is the seven-pointed star of the Commonwealth, its seventh point symbolising the Northern Territory, which is not represented on the shield. Below, superimposed on the foliage of an acacia tree, is the label "Australia".

Aboriginal flag

The Aborigines have had their own flag since 1972. It shows in the centre a yellow sun, the giver of life, on an upper field symbolising the black indigenous inhabitants of Australia and a lower field symbolising the red earth.
