

Optical 'dampening' of the refractive error to axial length ratio: implications for outcome measures in myopia control studies

