

Smart and high-tech hotel

Gurba Elizaveta
Bondar Aleksandr

We are opening the first hotel in Chelyabinsk, where guests are served by robots. Among them there are cleaners, porters, as well as robots that help put things in the closet.

The idea of the concept of this hotel came to the mind of two young programmers from the South Ural State University Gurba Elizaveta and Aleksandr Bondar. Now Aleksandr is the owner of this hotel, and Elizaveta is a developer of software for robots.

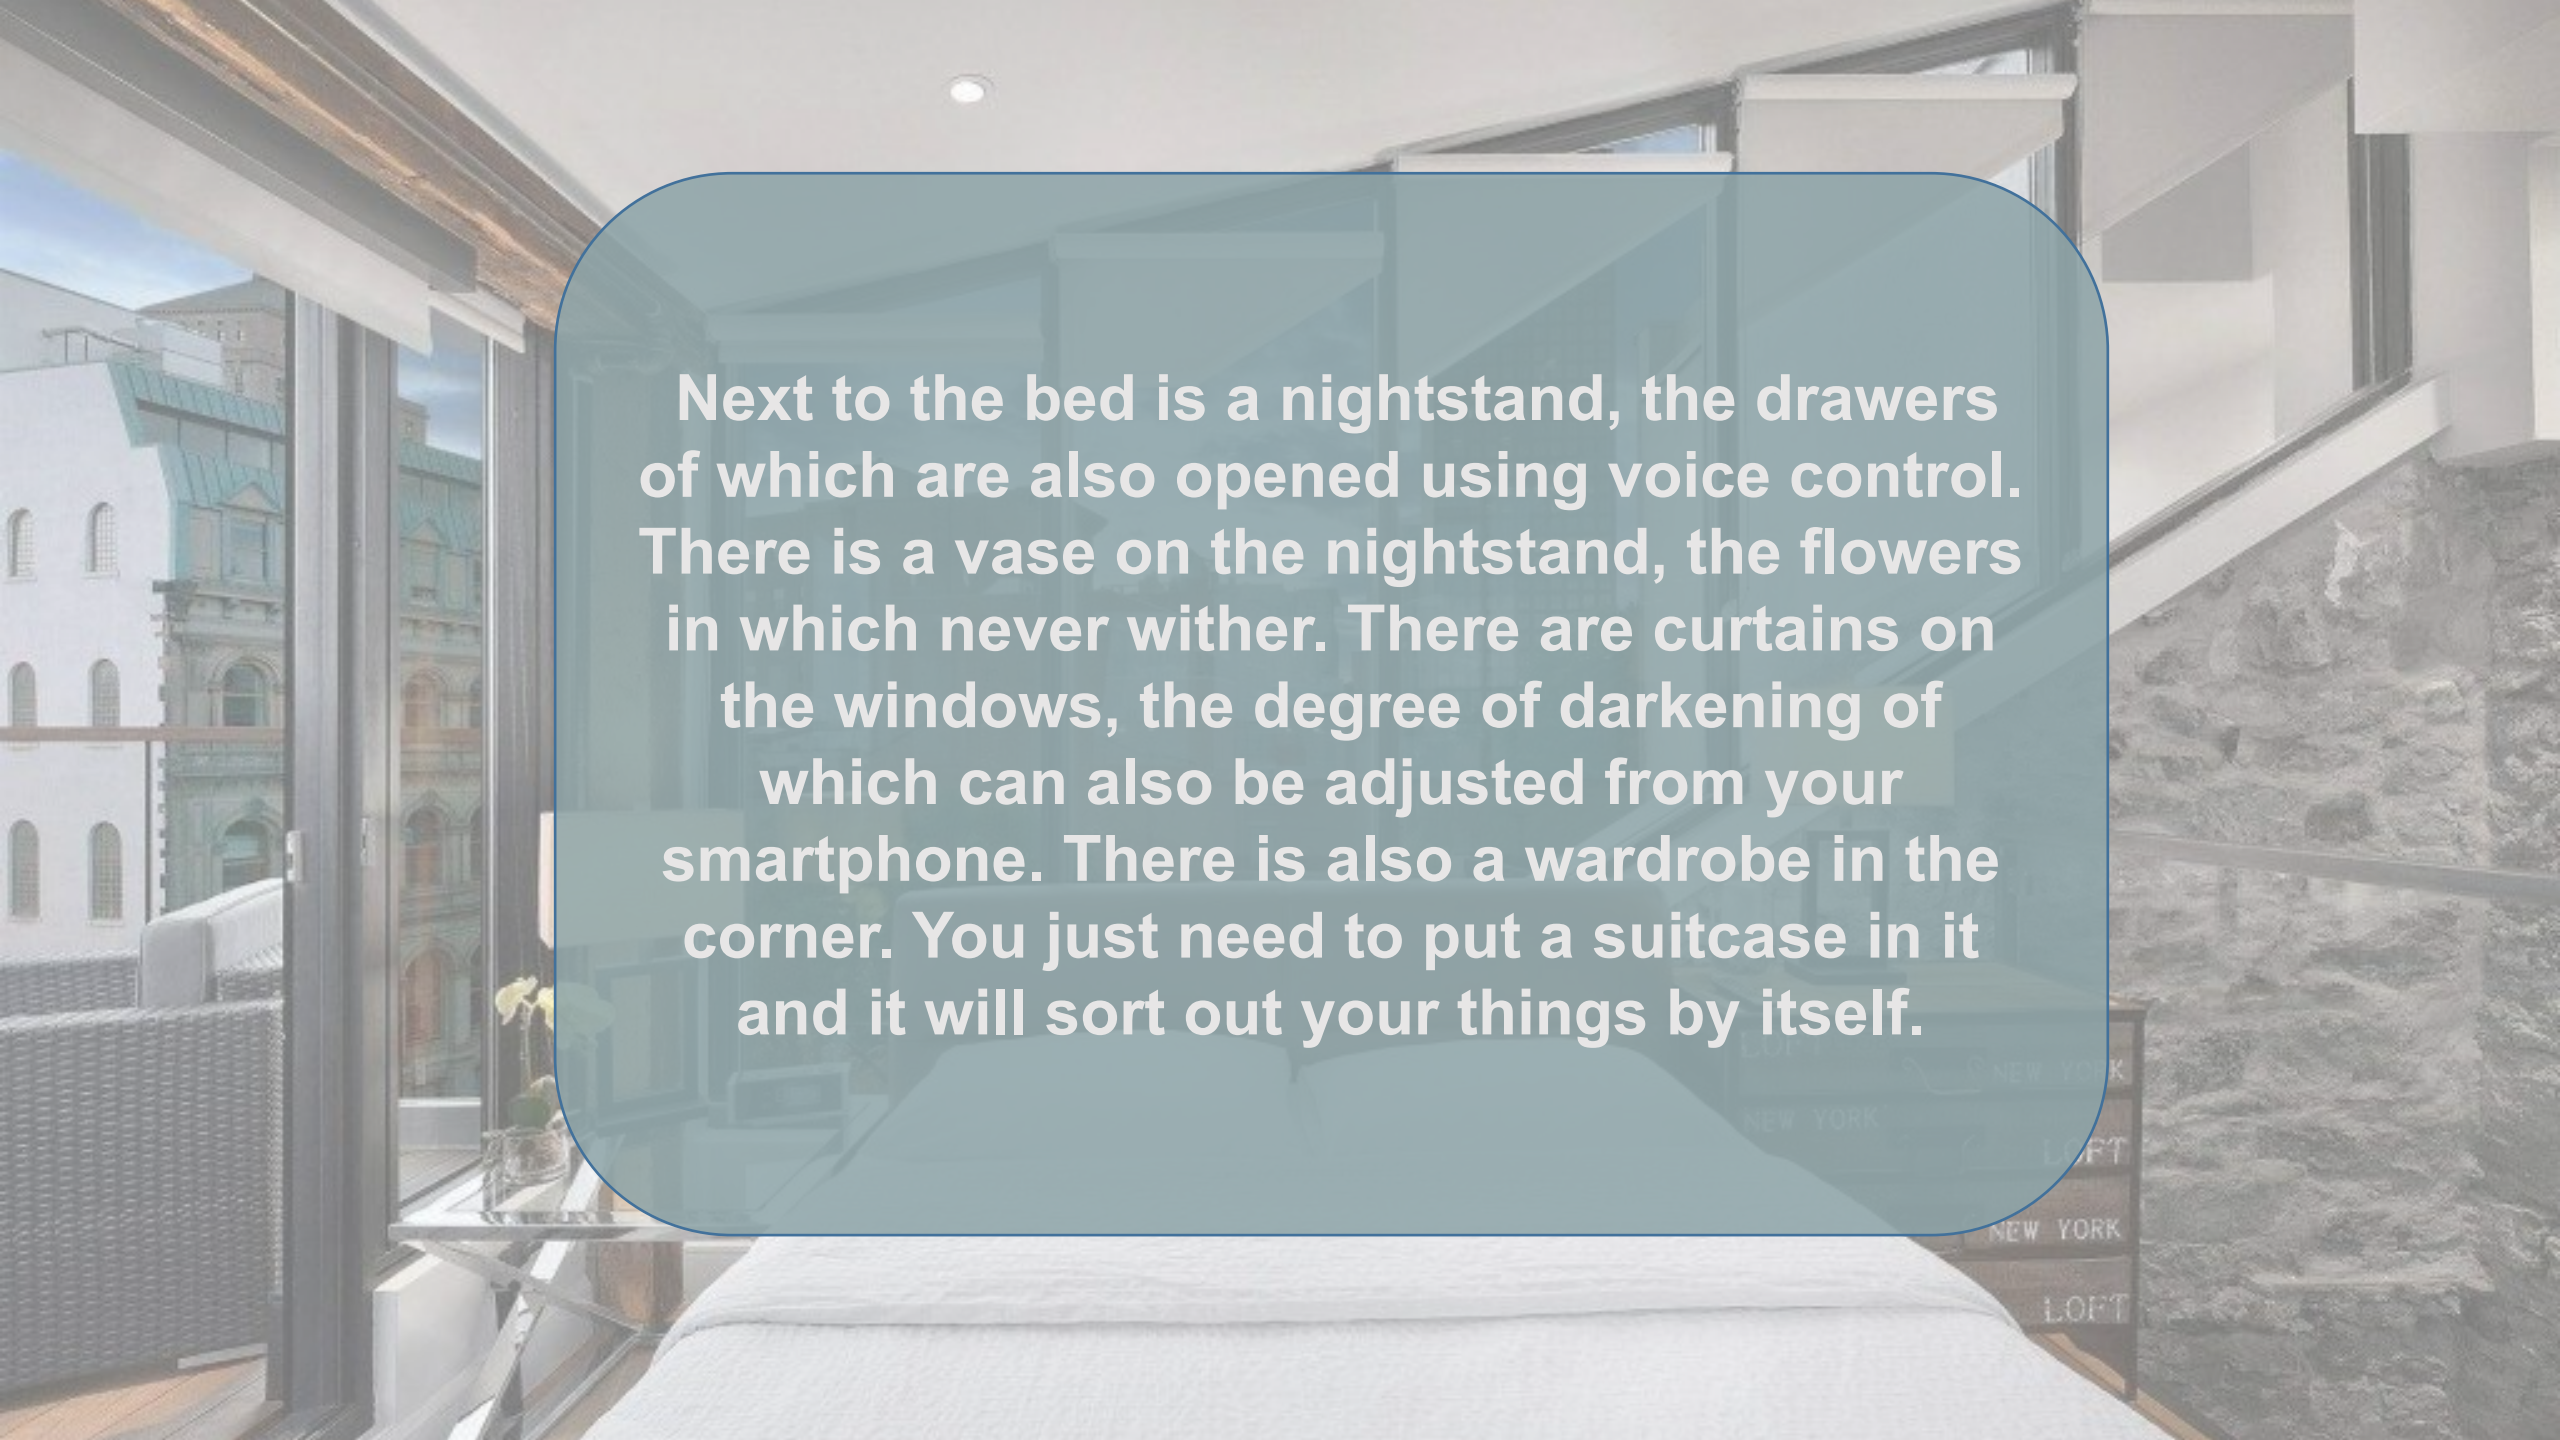

Location: The center of Chelyabinsk

Target audience: There is no age limit for guests staying at this hotel. Both adults and children are interested in seeing and communicating with robots.

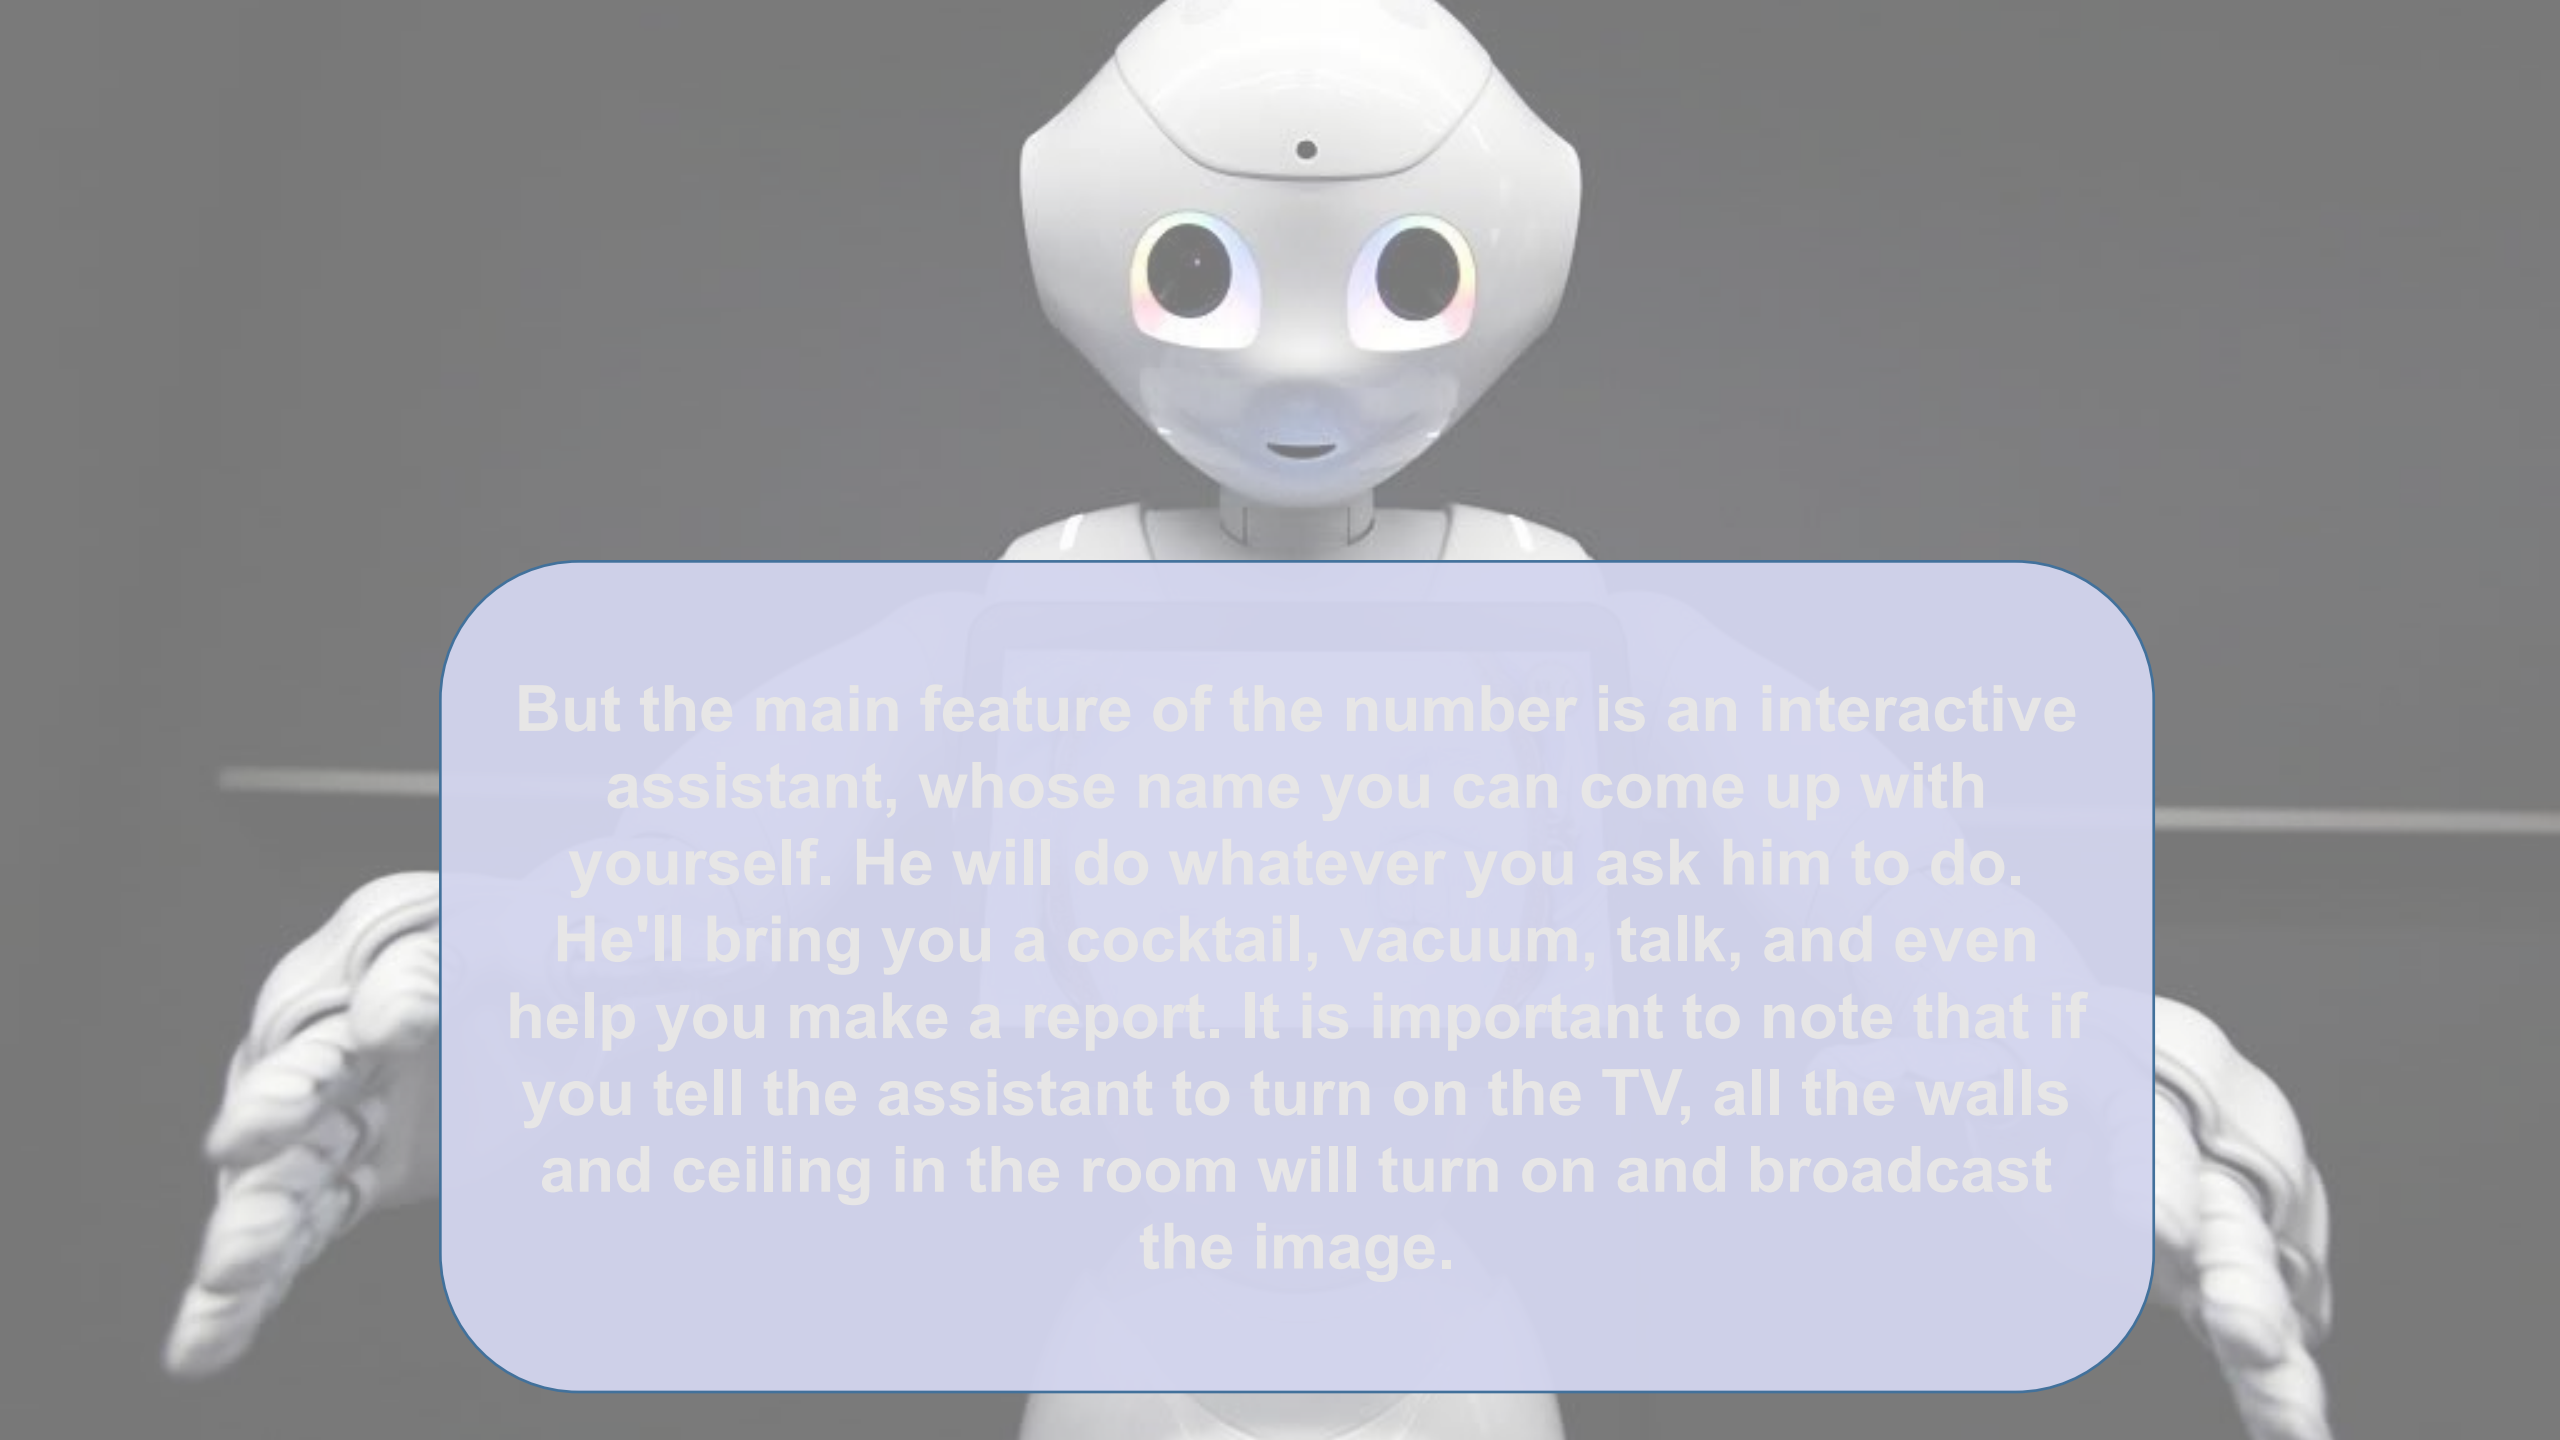

Cost: The average cost of a comfort class room is 1500 rubles per night.

Next to the bed is a nightstand, the drawers of which are also opened using voice control. There is a vase on the nightstand, the flowers in which never wither. There are curtains on the windows, the degree of darkening of which can also be adjusted from your smartphone. There is also a wardrobe in the corner. You just need to put a suitcase in it and it will sort out your things by itself.

A white humanoid robot with a friendly face, large eyes with rainbow-colored highlights, and a slight smile. It is holding a tablet in front of its chest. The background is a dark, slightly blurred indoor setting.

But the main feature of the number is an interactive assistant, whose name you can come up with yourself. He will do whatever you ask him to do. He'll bring you a cocktail, vacuum, talk, and even help you make a report. It is important to note that if you tell the assistant to turn on the TV, all the walls and ceiling in the room will turn on and broadcast the image.

Our hotel employs wonderful security guards Danil and Daniel. But recently there was an unpleasant incident. Hackers broke into the hotel's system and showed scary movies on the TVs. The hotel guests were outraged. While Elizabeth personally was apologizing to the guests, Alexander stopped this intervention. Everything ended well, the security system was improved, and the hackers were convicted under Article 273 of the Criminal Code of the Russian Federation.

We will be happy to welcome you as a guest in our hotel!!

Thank you for attention!
