Extract 1

E (Examiner): How long have you been doing this?

J (Maria): <sup>1</sup> What exactly?

E: Photography.

T: Photography - since school. Since eight years.

E: If you compare your photographs before, like, six years ago, and right now, are they different somehow?

T: Yes, I think they're better now, but I'm not, <sup>2</sup> like, professional photographer. <sup>3</sup> I don't know the exact items in the camera. I just like to <sup>4</sup> take pictures of something beautiful. I think it can bring some happiness for me, to other people, some memories. <sup>5</sup> If I could draw, I'd draw, <sup>6</sup> but I couldn't... can't.

What we did initially:

Provide the learners with an 'out-of-class learning' menu – a list of resources and activities they can do on their own.

Ask them to keep a diary.

Follow up on their out-of-class work around once a month.

Look through the Reference list with useful expressions for Emailing. Tick the ones you feel might be useful for you.

Edit the emails you wrote last time, in view of the feedback you got in class.

There's quite a lot, so simply leaf through the reference and start from the sections you're most interested in. If you have any questions, post them in our Skype chat.

Thanks, Olya. There are a lot of really useful expressions

Spot examples of language we've studied in something that you read, listen to or watch

You can post your examples here:

posted some screenshots in Skype

Have you read Romeo & Juliet?
Do you like this sign?

Noticing: language spotting

Have you read Romeo & Juliet?
Do you like this sign?

Look through the sign and
notice examples of language that we've studied. Why did
the author use it here?

Noticing: language spotting

Stage 1:

Engage with meaning

Have you read Romeo & Juliet?
Do you like this sign?

Stage 2:

Focus on language

Look through the sign and
notice examples of language
that we've studied. Why did
the author use it here?

Grammar interpretation (articles):

1) revise the uses of articles (look up the picture of the board posted on Skype last week)

2) Pick any short text (e.g. a paragraph from a work-related email from a native speaker), look at the nouns and the articles and analyze why the speaker used the articles the way they did.

The Van Gogh Museum displays over 200 of his works, including landscapes, still lifes and drawings and letters. By displaying them alongside works from Van Gogh's contemporaries, viewers get real insights into his life and work.

The museum itself is made out of two buildings. The main building, designed by Gerrit Rietveld, Joost van Dillen and J. van Tricht, opened in 1973. The second building, designed by Japanese architect Kisho Kurokawa was added in 1996. Located on Amsterdam's Museumplein (along with the Stedelijk and Rijksmuseum), the Van Gogh is one of the most visited museums in the Netherlands.

Now fast forward a little bit,
I'm now in about third grade, and (correct answer: I've just started) Not quite.. French for the first time.
But six months into a year,
into even two years later,

So, forward a little bit more.
About 13,
and (correct answer: I've been interested) Not quite.. in learning more about the Israeli-Palestinian conflict,
I started studying Hebrew.

And the comments, when I trickled in, were fantastic.
I got things like,
"Wow,  check an American speak Arabic before."
(Laughter)
You blame them?

when you live in New York?
And there's a point to that.
In fact,  check in New York my entire life,
and I'm always blown away by the number of languages
you can hear on a given day.

So I don't speak Urdu that well,
it was kind of an awkward conversation,
but just from that,  check a new word:
"Khod-Nawist"
