Conditionals Type 0, 1, & 2

Type 0 – general truths/ facts/ real

If + present simple, present simple

If water reaches 100 degree Celcius, it boils.

If she is hungry, she gets angry.

If you watch horror movies, you can't sleep at night.

Present simple if + present simple

Water boils if it reaches 100 degree celcius.

She gets angry if she is hungry.

You can't sleep at night if you watch horror movies, .

Type 1 – things likely to happen in the future

If + present simple, will + base verb

If John comes late, we will not go out.

If she is hungry, she will get angry.

If you watch horror movies, you will not sleep at night

Will+ Base Verb if + present simple

We won't go out if John comes late.

She will get angry if she is hungry.

You won't sleep at night if you watch horror movies.

Type 2 – things unlikely to happen in the future

If + Past simple, would + base verb

If John came late, we would not go out.

If she was hungry, she would get angry.

If you watched horror movies, you wouldn't sleep at night.

Would + Base Verb if + Past simple

We wouldn't go out if John came late.

She wouldn't get angry if she was hungry.

You wouldn't sleep at night if you watched horror movies.