

Escape from North Korea

You are a typical 19 years old North Korean. Your surname is Kim, and your name is not important. One day you wake up, look at the clock and realize that it does not work. You are late for work. If you do not hurry, you will be punished!

Hurry up!

Pretend that you are sick.

Late for Work

You dress up in 5 seconds and rush off to work. You catch a bus and after an hour, you reach your factory. Today you will be working for 9 hours, as usual. By the way, today you will get paid your monthly salary. It is $3 dollars. With this money you can buy 3 kilograms of rice for your family. It makes you happy and proud.

Enter the factory.

Time to get paid!

You decided to interfere. The police take poor man to the jail. You understand that it does not bother you, that people are poor and they just want to make ends meet, but it is your duty. Now it is time to go to your boss and ask him for salary.

You enter his cabinet and say hello. He says that he will pay you $2. Is it okay?

No. Insist on paying $3.

Yes. It is better to avoid conflict.

Insist

- Why should I pay you so much? You did not work very well this month.

Because I caught a criminal.

Pay me, right now, you greedy bastard!

Sorry, $2 is okay.

Offended boss

Your boss will not tolerate that. For such rude words you will get imprisoned. Good luck in jail.

Go to jail.

Take $2 and go home

You take your money and go home by bus. Near your house you see the police officers arrest your brother because he made a joke about the Glorious Leader.

Bribe them.

Sorry, bro, I cannot help you.

Go to jail instead of him.

Bribe with $2

You tried to bribe us with only $2? That is not enough. You are arrested now and you both go to jail.

Go to jail.

Bribe with $5

Okay, give me your $5 and pray we will never see each other again.

Sigh with relief!

Go to jail instead of your brother

When the policemen turned around you pretended to be your brother and now you are going to jail instead of him. A noble act, of course, but it will not really help you.

Go to jail.

Leave your brother

You and your brother plan to escape.

Your brother betrays you

Your brother screams “Hey, officers, he has a CD collection of South Korean films under his bed, go check it!” Soon, you are arrested and go to jail together.

Go to jail.

Sick?

After an hour two police officers come to your door and ask why you are still at home. They do not believe that you are sick. They arrest you and send to jail.

Go to jail.

Jail

You were a bad citizen and you will spend the rest of your life in jail.
Good luck!

Try another Korean...

You did not report a crime

After your working day two policemen approach and arrest you because you helped the bolt-stealer to escape. Actually you did not, but you did not report him either. It is a crime! You will go to jail for that.

Go to jail.

Factory

You are working hard. You do not really like this job, but it is better than being homeless, like people in South Korea. Suddenly you see your co-worker steal a small bolt. He is not your good friend so you decide to...

Do nothing.

Give him away.

Take $5 and go home.

You take your money and go home by bus. Near your house you see the police officers arrest your brother because he made a joke about the Glorious Leader.

Bribe them.

Sorry, bro, I cannot help you.

Go to jail instead of him.

You plan to escape

When the policemen go away you and your brother decide to run away from this hell.

To be continued.

