

Rivers of Russia

Prepared by Parsadanova Margot
Kulygina Maria

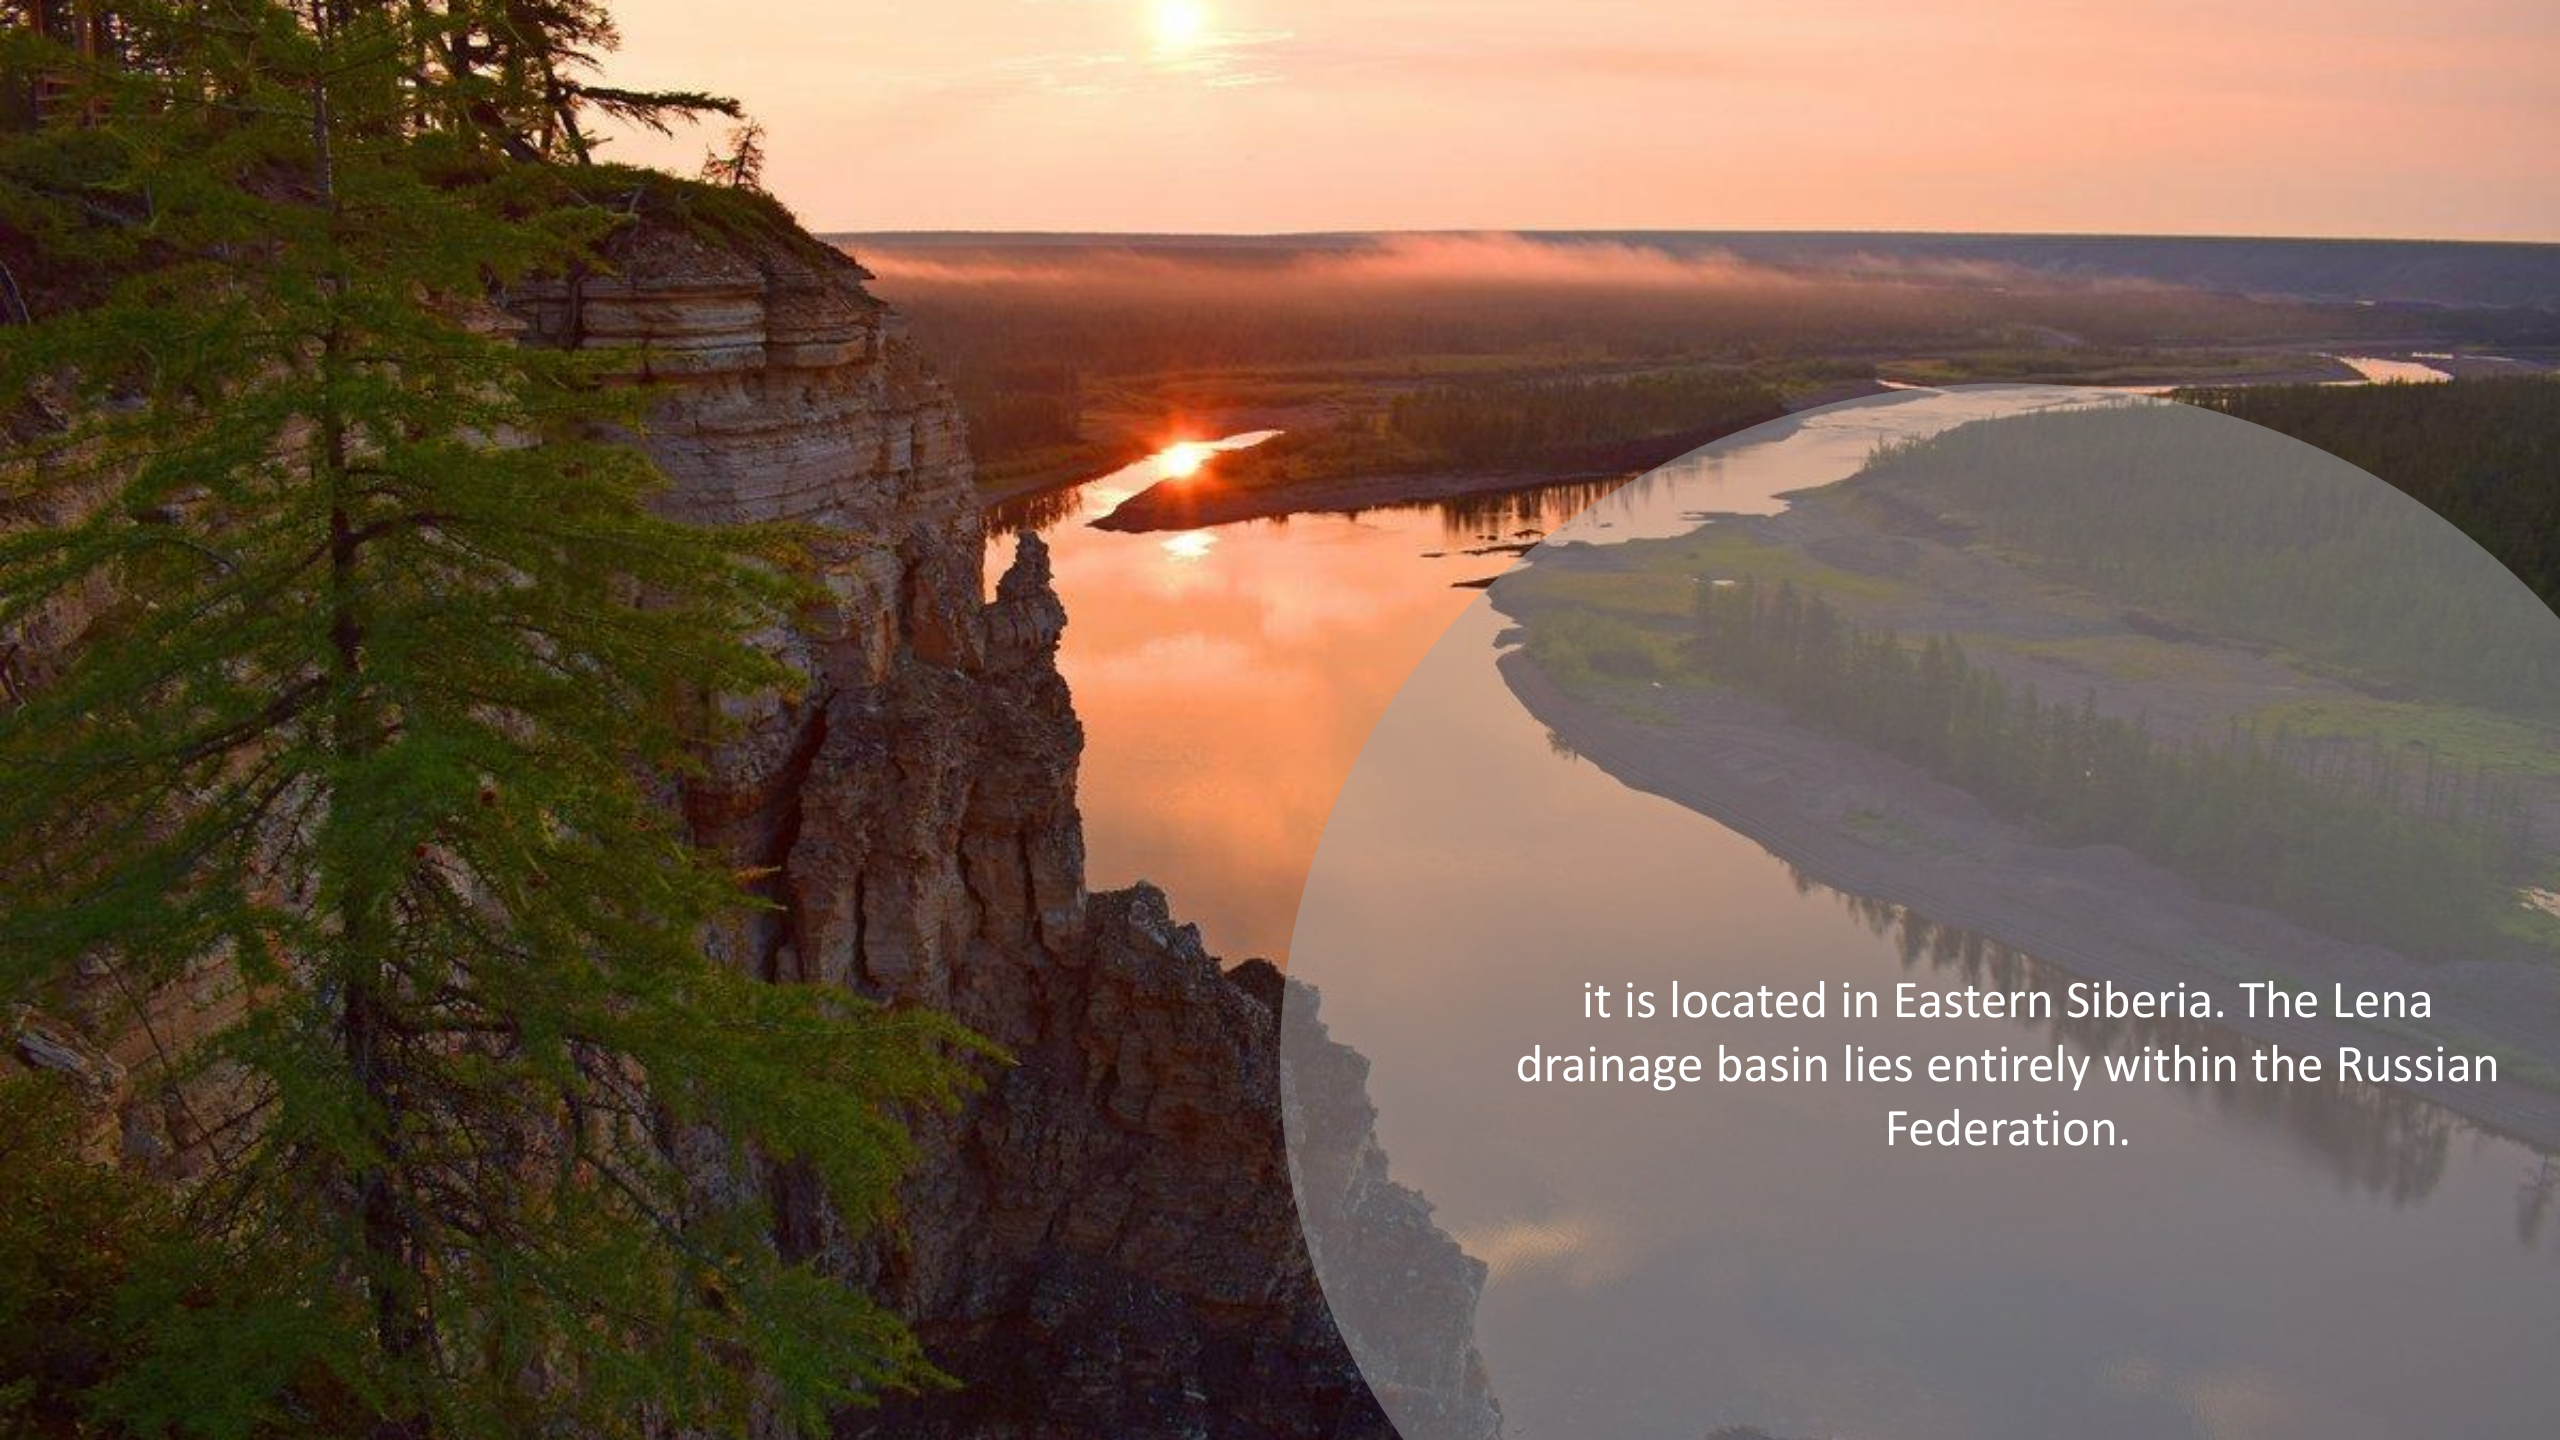

Lena is the world's largest river flowing in the permafrost zone, as well as the largest river in Russia, whose basin is located entirely on the territory of the Russian Federation.

Siberia

Its length is 4400 km. The Lena is the largest river in Eastern Siberia, the tenth longest river in the world, and the eighth deepest river in the world.

it is located in Eastern Siberia. The Lena drainage basin lies entirely within the Russian Federation.

An aerial photograph of the Lena River as it winds through a vast, forested valley. The river is a deep blue-grey color, contrasting with the green and brown of the surrounding land. In the distance, a range of mountains is visible under a clear sky. A small boat is seen on the river, leaving a white wake. The foreground is filled with the tops of pine trees, suggesting the viewer is looking down from a high vantage point. Two semi-transparent text boxes are overlaid on the image: one in the upper left containing the word 'Baikal' and another in the lower right containing descriptive text about the river's origin.

Baikal

The Lena River originates at an altitude of 1470 m above sea level in the wetlands on the slopes of the Baikal Range, 10 kilometers west of Lake Baikal.

An aerial photograph of the port of Tiksi, a small town in Siberia. The foreground shows a frozen body of water with patches of snow and ice. In the middle ground, there are several large industrial cranes and buildings, including a prominent yellow building. The background shows a dense residential area with many small, colorful houses. The sky is a pale blue.

the port of Tiksi

It flows into the Laptev Sea of the Arctic Ocean. The mouth of the Lena is an important transport hub in Siberia, in particular, one of the ports of the Northern Sea Route is located here - the port of Tiksi.

It is also rich in fish resources - these are such valuable species of fish as sturgeon, nelma, broad whitefish, muksun, omul, vendace. Taimen, lenok, and grayling are found in its eastern tributaries.

A woman with dark hair in a ponytail, wearing a dark crop top, is in a nightclub. She has her right hand raised. The background is filled with other people and colorful bokeh lights. A speech bubble is overlaid on the image.

bye
b*tches!!