

A vibrant, cartoon-style illustration of a classroom. The walls are orange, and the ceiling is white with green decorative lines and recessed lights. A large whiteboard with a green border is mounted on a dark blue wall, displaying the text "What colour is it?". Above the whiteboard are three round analog clocks. In front of the whiteboard is a green table with silver legs, holding a blue crayon and an open book. To the right of the table is a red wooden chair. On the floor in front of the table lies a black pencil. To the left of the table, there is a globe on a stand and a stack of books. On the far left wall, there are two empty whiteboards with green borders. On the right wall, there is a large window with a white frame, letting in bright light.
