Description of the equipment

Watercolor - a water-soluble adhesive paints , based on the pigment and the binder. When dissolved in water, these pigments form a unique slurry of fine pigment, which allows creating an effect of smooth transitions and transparency. The application of watercolor provides a significant dilution with water, so the root name - water (Aqua) and does not provide pasty application of paint , otherwise the feature of watercolor technology - transparency is lost.

The color saturation of watercolor is adjusted by adding water or by repeatedly reapplying the desired pigment onto the already dried layer of the previously applied pigment.

The quality of watercolor paint depends on the cost of materials used to create watercolor paint , as well as on the quality of the milled pigment used: the better the grinding of the pigment, the thinner the watercolor paint, without pronounced particles.

Composition of watercolor paint:

1. Pigments (finely dispersed powders),
2. Binder - dextrin, gum arabic, cherry or thorny gum,
3. A plasticizer (glycerol, honey or inverted sugar),
4. Surface active substance - bile bile - makes it easy to apply paint to paper without collecting paint in droplets,
5. Antiseptic - phenol, protects the paint from mold.

Types of watercolor paints:

1. In cuvettes - can be sold in a set and individually. A set of watercolors in cuvettes usually consists of 12-48 cuvettes, a pencil case and a palette (usually a lid of a pencil case).
2. In tubes - sold in sets and individually. Particularly relevant for large-scale works.

A set of water colors Sennelier, 20 colors + accessories, wood (N131622)

Excellent watercolors of the highest quality produced in France, which they wrote their masterpieces Soutine, Picasso and even Van Gogh. Paints are created using the highest quality pigments, which is easily confirmed by just brushing it on paper. Watercolor paints Sennelier are considered to be among the best in the world.

Sennelier presents a wide range of shades, which allows you to give free rein to the most daring artist in the creation of his masterpieces. Watercolor paints Sennelier have a soft texture, give an even bright tone and contain only natural ingredients.
