World's largest clothing retailer Inditex entered India with its flagship brand Zara on a Friday in May last year and that day the South Delhi outlet recorded the largest single-day sale by an international retailer in the country.

Less than a year later, Zara has gripped several retailers who are sharing shop space next to the Spanish brand outlets to leverage on its ability to pull shoppers in herds.

"Zara has pulled it," Natasha Chopra, who heads personal shopping services at Select Citywalk mall in South Delhi where Zara opened its first shop, said. "It's a hot favorite among shoppers because it offers trendy styles between 1,500-2,000."
