Private Diana video to be shown on TV

Princess Diana's private life is to be shown on television in a new documentary, which will include footage of her in a car crash and in a hospital bed. The BBC has announced that it will broadcast a two-part documentary about the princess's life, from her early years to her death. The first part will focus on her childhood and her marriage to Prince Charles, while the second part will focus on her later years and her death. The documentary will be shown on BBC One and BBC Two.
