

Lesson 31

Digraph th

Consonant Digraph/ Underline (Line Through Voiced)

Echo-

What sound do you hear in the final position of these words?

bath

math

moth

Right! /th/ is the sound we hear in the beginning or initial position of these words? “th” are the letters making that sound?

bāth

māth

mōth

Put your fingers on your vocal cords and say /th/. Do you feel any vibration? (No). Is /th/ voiced or unvoiced? (unvoiced) All of these words end with the /th/ sound. TH must be the letters making the /th/ sound. Is 'th' a vowel or a consonant? (consonant digraph) Explain Digraphs and how to code.

Digraph th

Di means two

and

graph means letter

Echo-

What sound do you hear in the initial position of these words?

this

than

then

Right! /th/ is the sound we hear in the beginning or initial position of these words? “th” are the letters making that sound?

this

than

then

Put your fingers on your vocal cords and say /th/. Do you feel any vibration? (yes). Is /th/ voiced or unvoiced? (voiced) All of these words begin with the /th/ sound. TH must be the letters making the /th/ sound. Is 'th' a vowel or a consonant? (consonant digraph) Explain Digraphs and how to code for a voiced sound.

Digraph th

Di means two

and

graph means letter

WHITE BOARDS-

Digraph th

Spell and Code:

thin

that

Smith

this

cloth

thick

moths

thin, that, Smith, this, cloth, thick, moths (Start coding with marker or projection tools now for white board practice)

th

New Cards

You put this little cap on the end of your finger when you sew with a needle and thread. It protects your finger when you push the needle.

What do you think it is?

th

This is one of the thin, light parts of a bird's body that help it fly and protect its skin.

It can also be used for pillows, fans and costumes.

What do you think it is?

th

New Sight Words

We can't sound these words out, so we will have to memorize them.

Let's practice!

Echo- their, their, their, that is their's (point to somebody, meaning it belongs to someone) there, there, there, over there! (Point to a location, meaning it is a place.)

their

there

Worksheet 31