American schools

WOW

- There are several types of schools in America. I'm going to talk about private schools. They are divided into joint and separate. In separate classes, students
- are separated by gender, in mixed classes, students of any gender can study.

- Examples of such schools include:
- Cushing Academy, a private school in Massachusetts,
- Holderness School in New Hampshire,
- The Princess Academy.

• Such schools are equipped with dormitories with good teachers who are interested in learning. Also, independence, character and good manners are brought up in such schools. Many who move to study in America prefer such schools. They have high security.

In such schools, children have time to do other things. For example, sports or other hobbies. The classes here are small, about 10-15 people. There are technical and laboratory classes there! Generally nice schools.
