A photograph of two women in traditional Indian attire, possibly during a wedding or festival. They are wearing white saris with red borders and are adorned with heavy jewelry, including necklaces, bangles, and earrings. They are smiling and appear to be dancing or celebrating. In the background, other people are visible, some in white clothing. A large white circle is overlaid on the image, containing the text "Similarities between our stories" in a white serif font.

our stories

Similarities between our stories

---

The first part of our texts are almost identical, as both are descriptions of the protagonist's actions of the same type, like moving from one point to another.

Such aspects as people around the protagonist, his interaction with objects are described in details.

Both stories are written in past tenses. The Past Simple tense is used more frequently amongst others.

The usage of past tenses

The usage of past tenses

The tenses in the text are mainly used in a proper way. Though, few mistakes were made when using past tenses

In some cases:

past simple was used instead of past continuous past perfect was used instead of past simple

Conclusion

Conclusion

Amongst the merits of their analysis is the detailed description of the scene where the protagonist meets with his dear mother

Every interaction was depicted by drawing parallels with Indian traditions

The meaning of the title is perfectly revealed in the last abstract of the story. Thus, the reader is kept totally intrigued till the very end
