Why a happy family is the most important thing in the world

- A healthy and happy family is not just a social unit. It makes an invaluable contribution to the development of a new generation, society and culture. The family is not just important, it is necessary for every individual, regardless of his social status and wealth.
- Happy you can call a family in which love and understanding reign. Each member feels the warmth of the hearth. Immediately after work, spouses in such a family rush home, and happy children, as expected, are carefree and playful.

• Individuality

- My dad has black hair and brown eyes and chocolate-colored skin. He has a very powerful character.
 - My mother has green-blue eyes, fair skin and originally brown hair. Her good but stubborn character
