

Northern Territory

Geography

The Northern Territory is a federal Australian territory in the central and central northern regions of Australia. It shares borders with Western Australia to the west, South Australia to the south and Queensland to the east. To the north, the territory is bordered by the Timor Sea, the Arafura Sea and the Gulf of Carpentaria.

Despite its large area—over 1,349,129 square kilometres, making it the third largest Australian federal division. The Northern Territory's population is about 244,000.

Northern Territory

Western Australia

Queensland

South
Australia

New
South
Wales

Victoria

Australian
Capital
Territory

Tasmania

OnTheWorldMap.com

Capital

- The capital and largest city is Darwin. with a population of 145,916. It is the smallest and most northerly of the Australian capital cities.

Symbols

The flag's colours consist of the official Territorian colours of black, white and ochre (making it the only flag among Australia's states and territories not to feature the colour blue).

They were officially granted by royal warrant of Queen Elizabeth II on 11 September 1978. The arms, uniquely in Australia, incorporate all of the territory's floral, animal and bird emblems: the Sturt's desert rose , red kangaroo and wedge-tailed eagle

