

Animals in america

There are many dangerous animals in America.

Black Widow spiders

It is home to the Black Widow spiders, whose venom kills in a very short time.

Bison

There is also the American bison, which is the largest land animal in America and has a very high speed.

Gray wolves and coyotes

Gray wolves are the largest wolves in Canada. Coyotes are smaller than wolves, but over the years they have been attacking and killing people.

Mountain lions

Mountain lions have several names, more often they are called cougars or pumas. Most often they eat deer, elk, and livestock. Like bison, they are large predators, capable of great speed.

Alligators

Alligators, although very strong, do not attack people. They prefer food that can be eaten in one go. There are many species of venomous snakes, some of which pose a real danger to humans in North America.

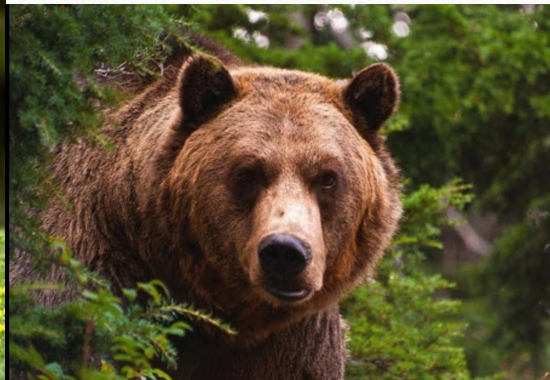

Bears

There are three types of bears in North America, and they are all very dangerous.

Black bear

Brown bear

Polar bear

Deer

And in the end I want to say about the deer.

They are considered the most dangerous animals in America, although in fact this is not true. Often there are accidents on the roads when a car runs over a deer and its herd wants to protect it.

It's all I wanted to say about animals in America

