

Ecology

The word "ecology" translates from Greek means the science of the house.

- Today, many people around the world are concerned about ecology, because the planet Earth is our great common home. And the health and well-being of each of us depends on how well everything is in it.

- And on the planet everything is interconnected and interdependent, and a person as a species is inscribed in a complex natural structure. By exhausting our earthly resources, we thereby endanger our very existence. We create a world infected with radiation and dirt in which we can not be healthy

- I hope we can still fix it. Scientists around the world are developing technologies that allow the use of renewable energy sources. There are cars driving on environmentally friendly fuel.

New enterprises in developed countries are based on environmental needs. All ecological becomes fashionable, and it means that it will spread further!

I hope that our people will become wiser, and money, power, pomp, personal interests will never stand above the life of the entire planet in general.

The End
