Annotation

- Annotation is an essential skill that lets us make the most out of reading. When annotating, one inspects a text they read with a critical eye and makes useful notes. An annotated article helps better understand the material, can become a part of academic research, and make the process of preparing for tests easier.
- Аннотирование - это важный навык, который позволяет нам извлечь максимальную пользу из чтения. При аннотировании человек критически осматривает прочитанный текст и делает полезные заметки. Аннотированная статья помогает лучше понять материал, может стать частью академических исследований и облегчить процесс подготовки к тестам.

KEYWORDS

- Read through your paper and highlight any key terms or phrases that are most relevant to the focus of your work.
- Draw up a shortlist.
- Try searching with your keywords to make sure the results fit with your article and so you can see how useful they would be to others.
- Narrow down your keywords to make sure they are as accurate as possible.
- Review your final list and ask yourself, will these keywords be most effective at indexing my article online?

- Keywords are a tool to help indexers and search engines find relevant papers. If database search engines can find your journal manuscript, readers will be able to find it too. This will increase the number of people reading your manuscript, and likely lead to more citations.
 - However, to be effective, Keywords must be chosen carefully. They should:
 - Represent the content of your manuscript
 - Be specific to your field or sub-field

- An abstract is a short summary of a longer work (such as a dissertation or research paper). The abstract concisely reports the aims and outcomes of your research so that readers know exactly what the paper is about.
- Write the abstract at the very end, when you've completed the rest of the text. There are four things you need to include:
 - Your research problem and objectives
 - Your methods
 - Your key results or arguments
 - Your conclusion
- An abstract is usually around 150–300 words, but there's often a strict word limit, so make sure to check the requirements of the university or journal.
- In a dissertation or thesis, include the abstract on a separate page, after the title page and acknowledgements but before the table of contents.

UNIT 3 Writing an abstract (p.147)

- What is an abstract?

- An abstract is a self-contained, short, and powerful statement that describes a larger work. Components vary according to discipline. An abstract of a social science or scientific work may contain the scope, purpose, results, and contents of the work. An abstract of a humanities work may contain the thesis, background, and conclusion of the larger work. An abstract is not a review, nor does it evaluate the work being abstracted. While it contains key words found in the larger work, the abstract is an original document rather than an excerpted passage.
- Аннотация - это самодостаточное, краткое и мощное утверждение, описывающее большую работу. Компоненты варьируются в зависимости от предмета. Аннотация к социальной науке или научной работе может содержать объем, цель, результаты и содержание работы. Аннотация к гуманитарной работе может содержать тезис, предысторию и заключение более крупной работы. Аннотация не является обзором и не оценивает реферативную работу. Хотя в нем содержатся ключевые слова, найденные в более крупной работе, аннотация представляет собой оригинальный документ, а не отрывок из отрывка.

When do people write abstracts?

- when submitting articles to journals, especially online journals
- when applying for research grants
- when writing a book proposal
- when completing the Ph.D. dissertation or M.A. thesis
- when writing a proposal for a conference paper
- when writing a proposal for a book chapter

How do I write an abstract?

- The format of your abstract will depend on the work being abstracted. An abstract of a scientific research paper will contain elements not found in an abstract of a literature article, and vice versa. However, all abstracts share several mandatory components, and there are also some optional parts that you can decide to include or not. When preparing to draft your abstract, keep the following key process elements in mind:
 - Reason for writing: What is the importance of the research? Why would a reader be interested in the larger work?
 - Problem: What problem does this work attempt to solve? What is the scope of the project? What is the main argument/thesis/claim?

- Methodology: An abstract of a scientific work may include specific models or approaches used in the larger study. Other abstracts may describe the types of evidence used in the research.
- Results: Again, an abstract of a scientific work may include specific data that indicates the results of the project. Other abstracts may discuss the findings in a more general way.
- Implications: What changes should be implemented as a result of the findings of the work? How does this work add to the body of knowledge on the topic?

Suggested answers

- What: main ideas / new findings, results, aims, methods, background
- How: short, brief, clear, able to meet/satisfy/fulfill the requirements of the journal
- Why: to attract readers, to make readers interested in the article, because it is the requirement of the journal, to spread knowledge, for cross-referencing and quick search

- Abstract. In the context of educational modernization, the attention to traditional values is one of the ways to form the theories of education with Chinese characteristics. Confucius' philosophical reflections are focused on the ideology of education, which focuses on the formation of talents. According to the author, the modern education system of China, referred to as the philosophy of Confucius, sees in it not only traditional value orientations, but also a value-normative attitude to the modern system of education and upbringing. The author supports the positions of Chinese education theorists that the address to the philosophical thoughts of Confucius is necessary today for the formation of indicators which can show how the concept of Chinese educational modernization has been formed.
- Keywords: Confucius, philosophy of Confucius, traditional Confucian values, talents, morality, knowledge, traditional values in the concept of modern Chinese education.
