In the 1700's tea was really popular

About three quarters of the tea Americans were drinking was smuggled in, usually from Holland.

A historical painting depicting a public meeting in Boston. A large crowd of people in 18th-century attire is gathered in front of a brick building. Two men stand on the steps of the building, one holding a scroll and the other gesturing. The scene is filled with activity, with people talking, holding papers, and a dog lying on the ground. Two speech bubbles are overlaid on the image, containing text.

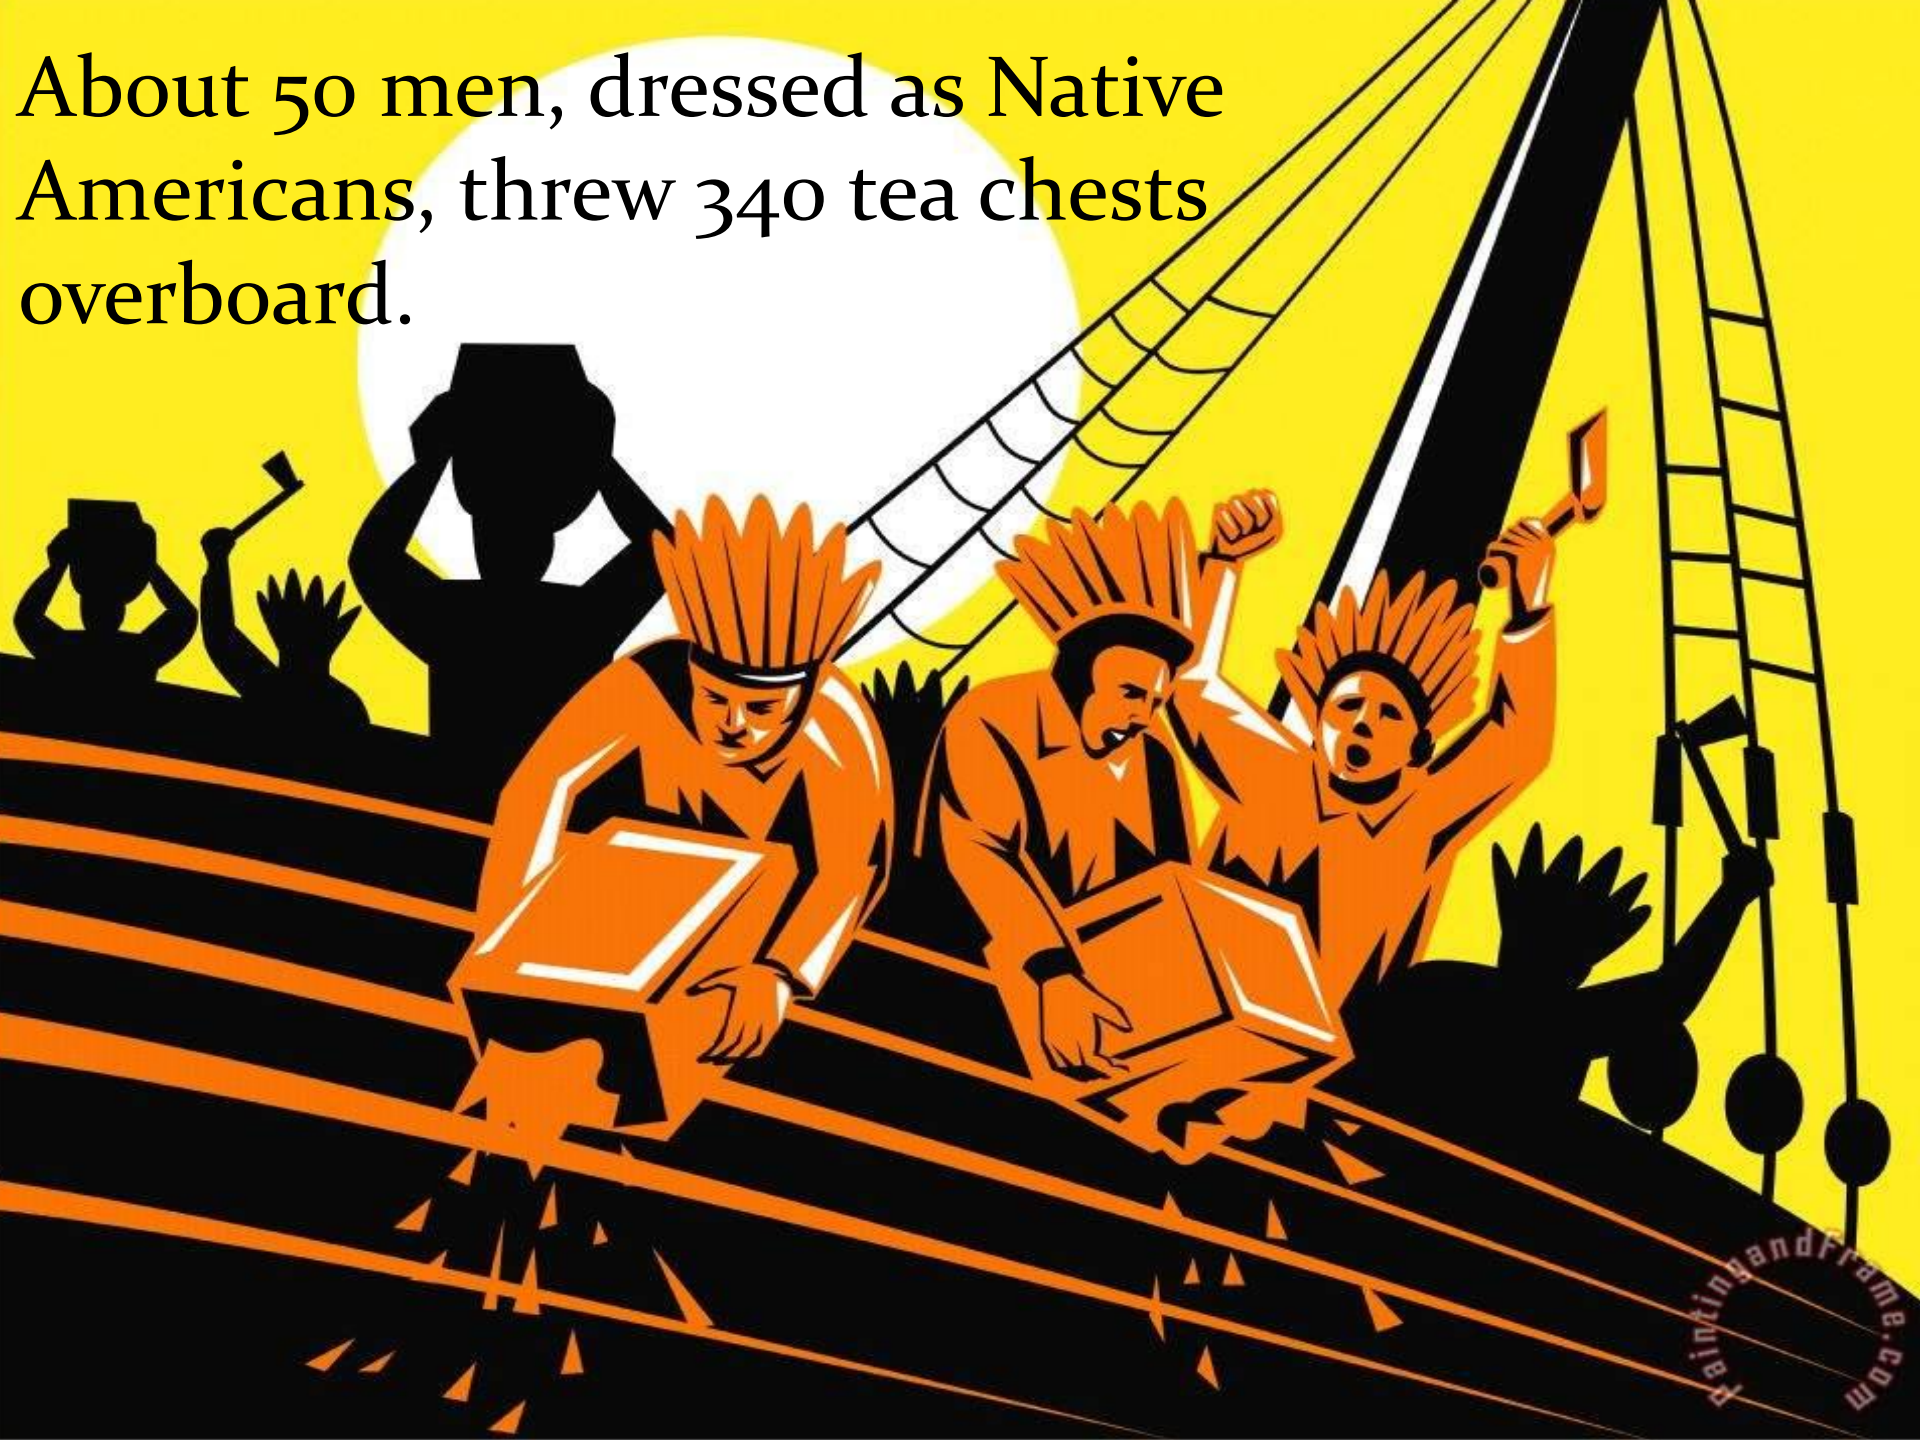

Boston
harbour a teapot
tonight!

This meeting
can do no more
to save the country!

Sam Adams

About 50 men, dressed as Native Americans, threw 340 tea chests overboard.
