Change Enter Picks screen to 'Game Centre' – Upcoming Games

Each event will have one main market detailed where the user can enter a pick for the 'Spread' market. But most users will click one of the Enter Picks, Best Odds or Stats & Insights buttons to navigate to the screen covered on the next page.

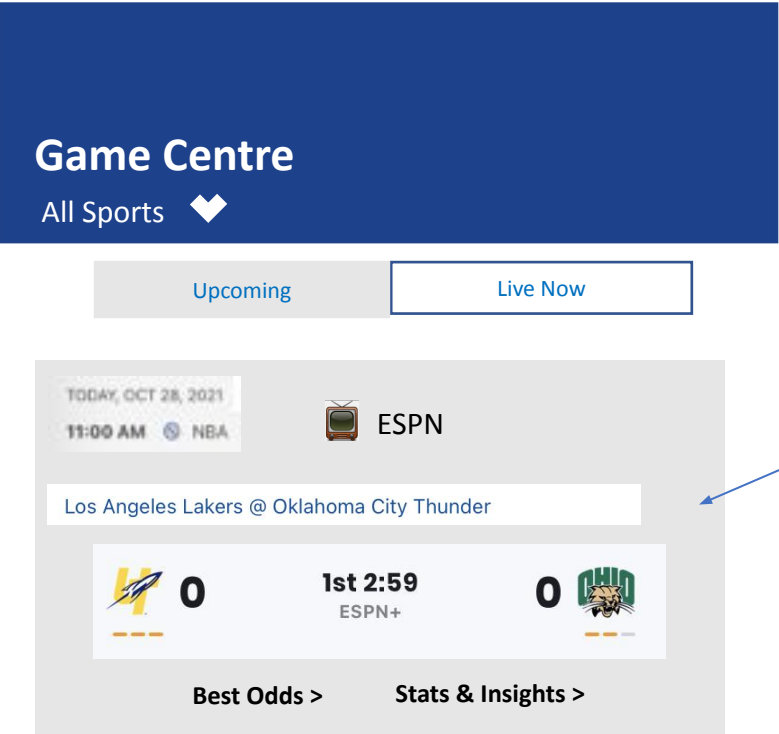

Due to Golf not being a head to head sport, the odds will not show on the summary screen.

Users should be able to see how many 'Best Picks' are available on the game.

Change Enter Picks screen to 'Game Centre' – Live Games

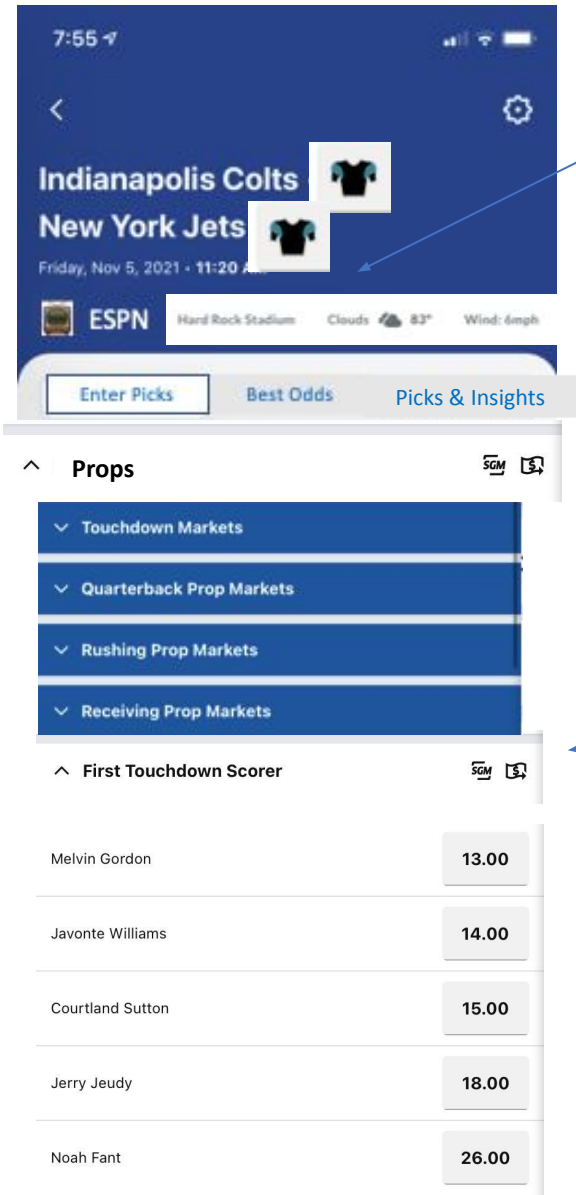

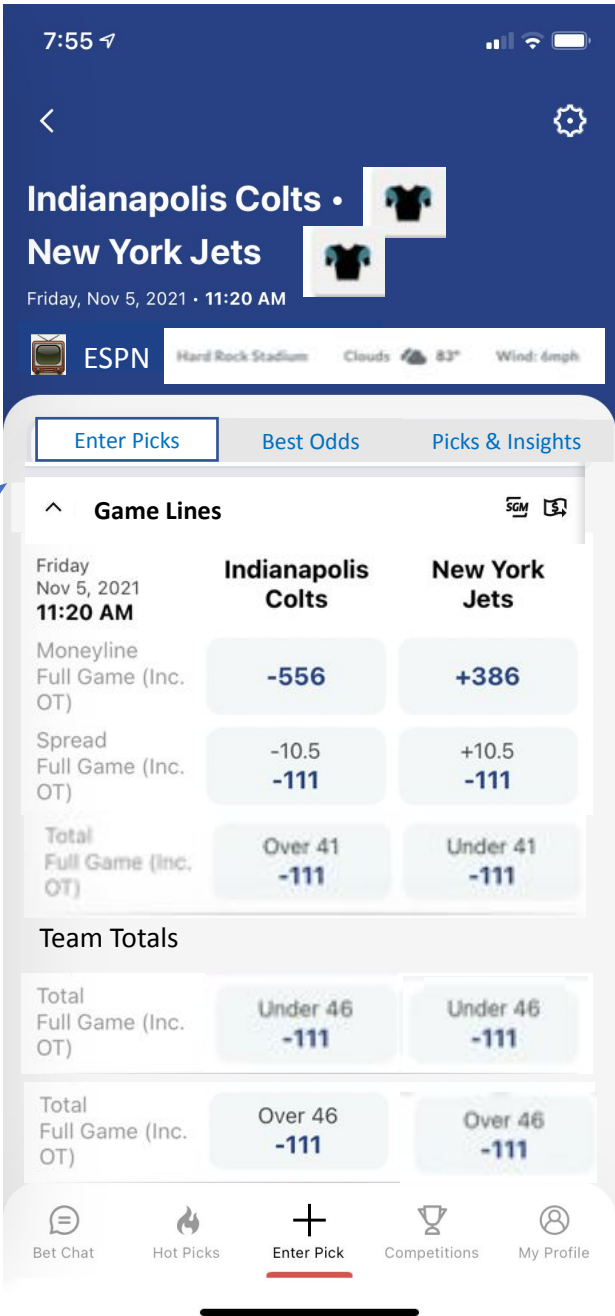

We will now cover games that are in a live state. When they are live, we will cover the score, some stats, and the best odds

New 'More Options' screen

All options for 'Enter Picks' on one tab. Other tabs detail other new content. We think all of the different markets should have their own drop downs

The drop downs design is used by a popular betting app called Sportsbet. See the next slide for an example.

Team Jerseys, TV station the game will be on, the weather, the stadium and the team colours will be included in the new data feed.

New options for entering picks called 'Props'. Props are a different type of bet. Instead of it being on who wins a match, a prop bet can be on specific things within a match like 'who scores the first goal?'

Best Odds tab

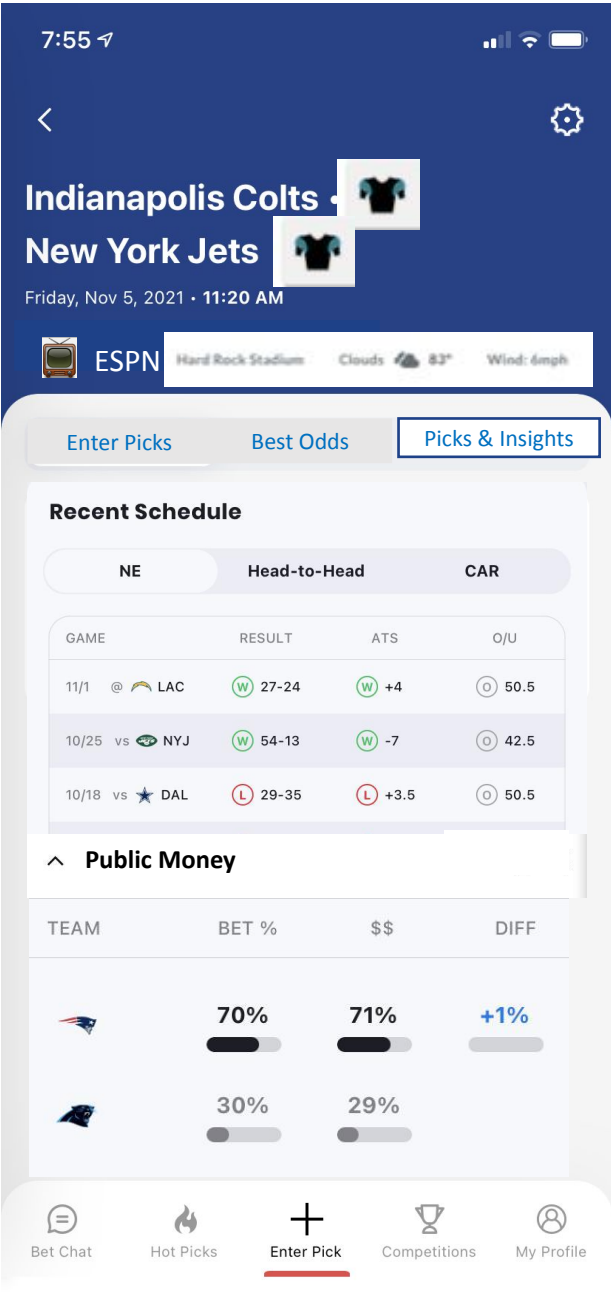

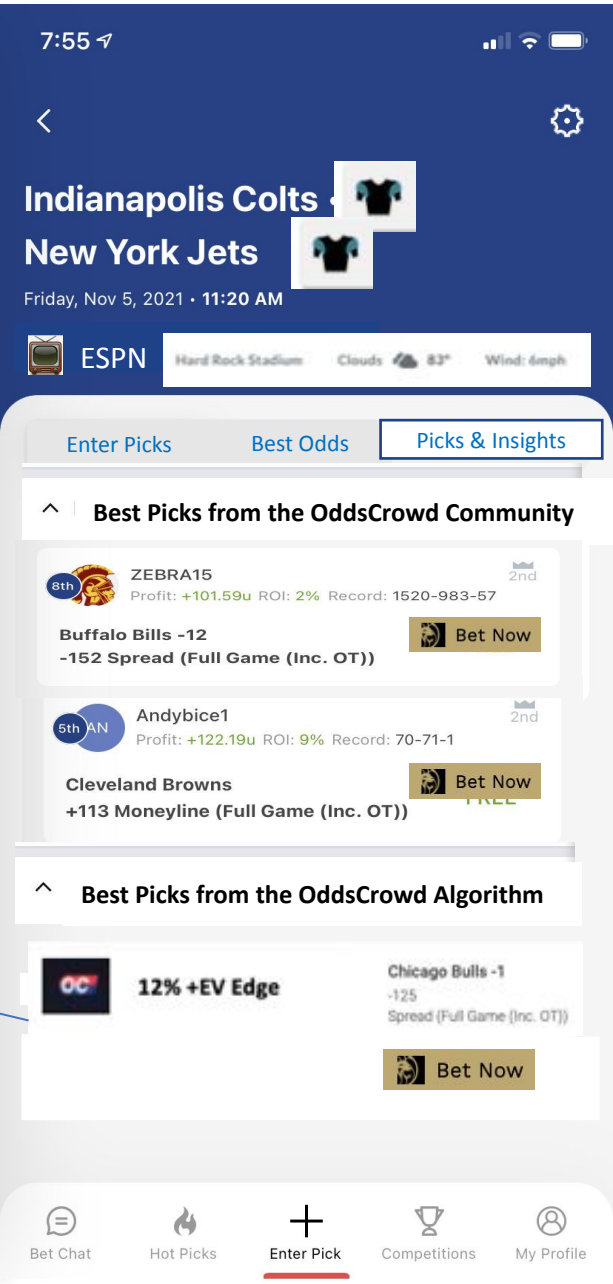

This screen aims to compare the odds from all of the Sportsbooks. Users can just see the Sportsbook who offers the best odds, or click the dropdown and see them all.

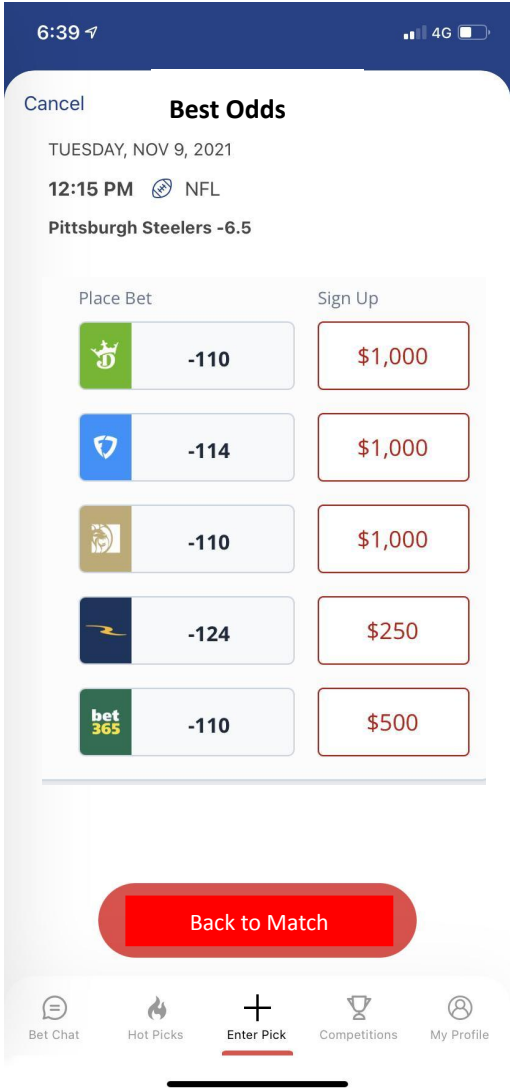

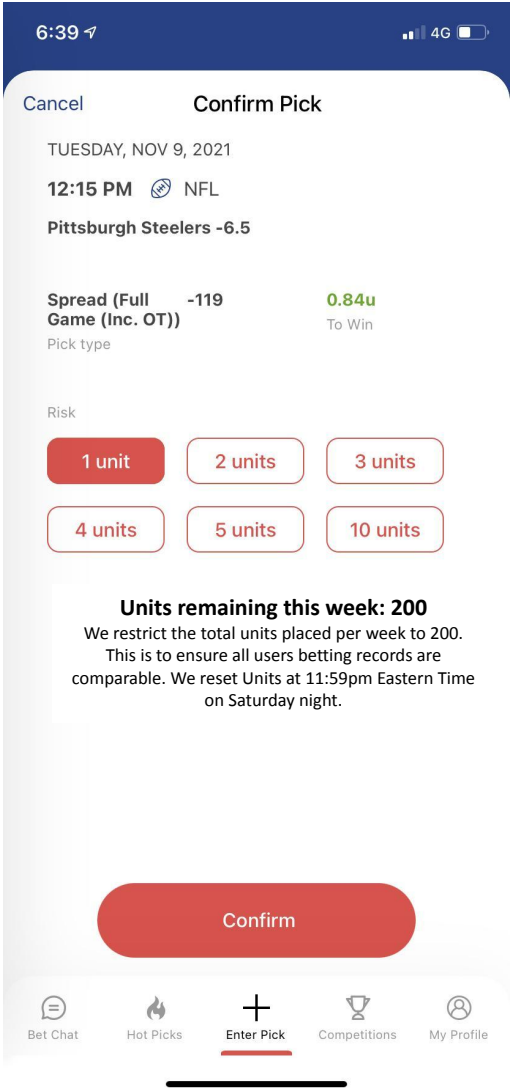

Picks and Insights tab

This tab aims to provide the user with a range of different betting insights into the game. For example, betting picks from the best performers, recent schedule, Line movement, recent results.

These selections will be based on the logic covered in the User Stories. Users should be able to click through to the Sportsbook who is offering the best odds for the pick suggested.

Recommended Bet Placement

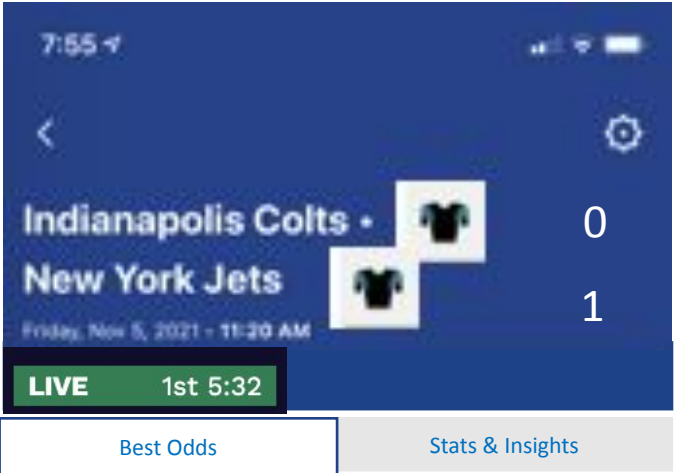

After a user has placed a pick, it navigates to this screen, where the user is shown odds from Sportsbooks where they can click a link through to a sportsbook, or use a signup bonus.

Live Game

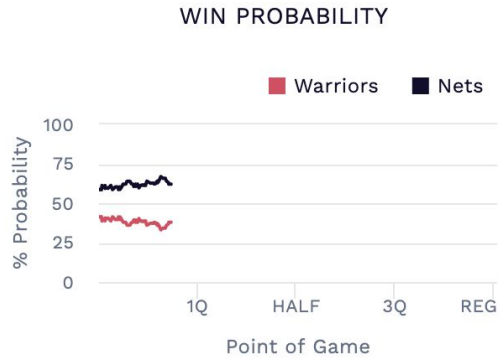

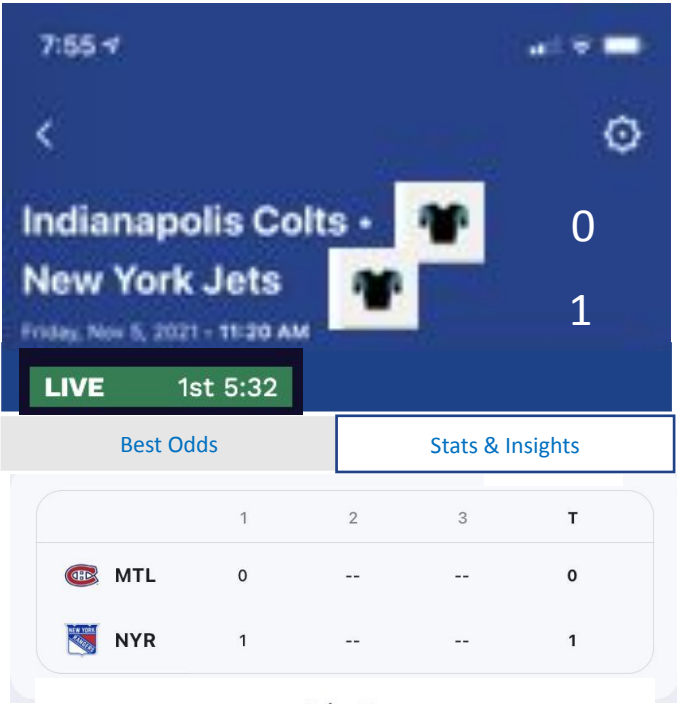

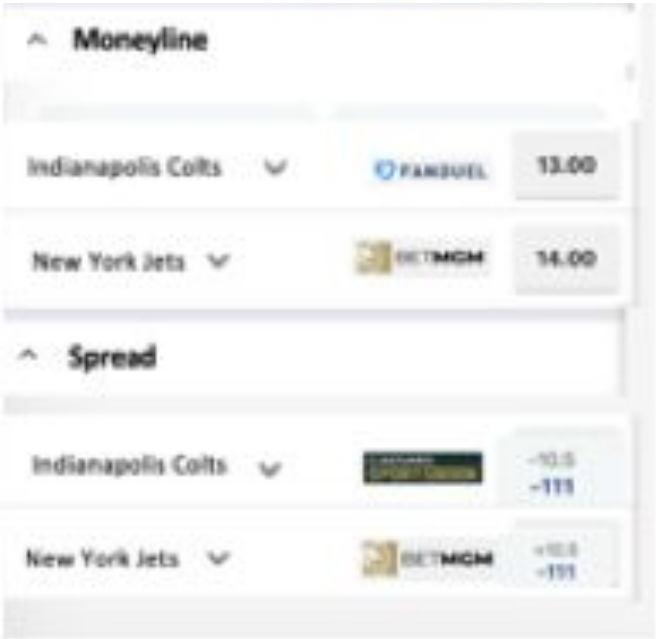

When a game goes 'live', the tabs will change to 'Best Odds' and 'Stats & Insights'.

We will cover the live odds, and the top level stats for the game.

Users will not be able to track bets on live games.

The Best NFL Picks

Oddscrowd.com offers the best Free NFL picks, NFL predictions and top NFL algorithm picks for every NFL game this season.

Why does OddsCrowd Offer the best NFL <insert league name> picks? Because we rank and profile the betting performance of all users on OddsCrowd via our Pick Tracking using real odds and lines. We then track every users ROI, Profitability, Strike Rate and much more across their NFL <insert league> Picks. By doing this, you know who you should and shouldn't be listening to when placing your next bet. If you want to take a deeper look at a bettor's performance before using their pick, click on their profile <link to profiles page> to see an analysis of their past performance. Check out our Hot Picks pages <link> for a summary of the best picks from the best bettors from across our community.

Why Follow the OddsCrowd Algorithm's Free NFL <insert league name> Picks?

The OddsCrowd Algorithm uses advanced data monitoring and analytics to deliver the sharpest data driven picks available in the industry. It aggregates the odds and line movements of the most advanced sportsbooks in the world to calculate the 'perfect odds' for every matchup. When the algorithm finds Odds by Legal US Sportsbooks that it determines offer value relative to it's perfect odds, it recommends the bet. This is what is commonly referred to as +EV or ' Plus Expected Value' betting.

Find the Best Odds on every NFL <insert league name> game

Why follow the OddsCrowd Algorithm's Picks?

OddsCrowd Algorithm uses advanced data monitoring and analytics to identify value driven picks. It aggregates the odds and line movements of the most advanced sportsbooks in the world to calculate what it deems the 'perfect odds' for every matchup. When the algorithm finds Odds by Legal US Sportsbooks that it determines offer value relative to it's perfect odds, it recommends the bet. This is what is commonly referred to as +EV or ' Plus Expected Value' betting.

How should I interpret the OddsCrowd Algorithm's Picks?

The OddsCrowd algorithm's picks are determined by the value of the odds relative to the probability of the outcome happening. They should not be determined as a 'sure thing' or 'lock' like some betting analysts offer. If the OddsCrowd Algorithm is suggesting a pick, it is telling you it thinks that the probability of the bet winning is better relatively than what the odds being offered by Sportsbooks currently suggest.

Can the OddsCrowd Algorithm's Picks Change?

The OddsCrowd Algorithm's Picks recommended Picks do regularly change, and should only be followed at the specific time of publishing. For example, you might check one day before a game starts and it is recommending one pick. Then you might return 30 minutes before the game kicks off and the pick will not be suggested anymore. This is due to the fact that the Picks are based on the value of the odds being offered at the time, and odds change regularly.

NFL <insert League name> Odds Comparison

If you're searching for the best NFL <insert league name> odds, you have come to the right place. With the OddsCrowd Odds Comparison tool, we do the hard work for you by gathering the odds data from the biggest and best Legal US Sportsbooks, and presenting them to you side by side in a table. This allows you to directly compare the odds and lines, and identify the best Sportsbook for you to place your bet at.

Here are a few things to note:

- 1) We offer unrivalled accuracy and speed of updating of our odds data from the best Legal US Sportsbooks.
- 2) We automatically highlight which Sportsbook is giving the best odds on any spread, moneyline, or totals bet. So it takes the guess work out of it.
- 3) You can look at spreads, moneylines, and over/unders all at once for any given game
- 4) At the top of the table you will see the Sign Up Bonus for the relevant Sportsbook. If you haven't joined the Sportsbook that you want to place the bet at, we recommend you join by following the unique link. Sign Up Bonuses are a great way to get a head start on your bankroll.
- 5) Sportsbooks will offer markets on the full game and on first quarter, first half, second half, etc. Use the dropdown menu to find the market you want to place your bet on.

Why Compare Odds?

We recommend you place your bet at the Legal US Sportsbook that offers the most favourable odds. Shopping around different Sportsbooks for the best odds is an important fundamental to give yourself the best chance of being a profitable bettor in the long run.

Basics of Sports Betting – Point Spread

The most popular type of bet is the Spread or Point Spread. This essentially gives the Underdog a point handicap head start against the favourite. A favorite is the team likely to win and in turn is designated with a minus sign. The number designates the number of points the handicap is. An underdog is the team likely to lose. An underdog has a plus sign next to its odds.

When reading Spread Odds, alongside the points spread number is the odds. Some people call this 'the juice', 'the margin' or 'the vig'. This represents the payout for the bet.

Odds Comparison - Copy at the bottom for improved Search Engine Rankings

Basics of Sports Betting – Moneyline

A Moneyline bet is a straight bet on the team to win, without any handicaps. You will generally see a favorite and an underdog. For example, you might see team one priced at -370 in the in a game against Team B. Team B will have Odds at +290 underdogs.

A minus number tells you the amount you would need to bet in order to win $100. A $370 bet at -370 would earn you a $100 profit if your team were to win. A plus sign before the odds shows how much you would win if you were to place $100 on the team. So at odds of +290 you would win $290 for a $100 bet.

Basics of Sports Betting – Totals

Totals are another very popular bet type. With a Total bet, you are not betting on a winner of the game, you are betting on the Total score of the game. There are two options to bet on:

- Over – A bet that the game score (combined score of both teams together) will be Over the Sportsbook’s forecasted score
- Under - A bet that the game score (combined score of both teams together) will be Under the Sportsbook’s forecasted score

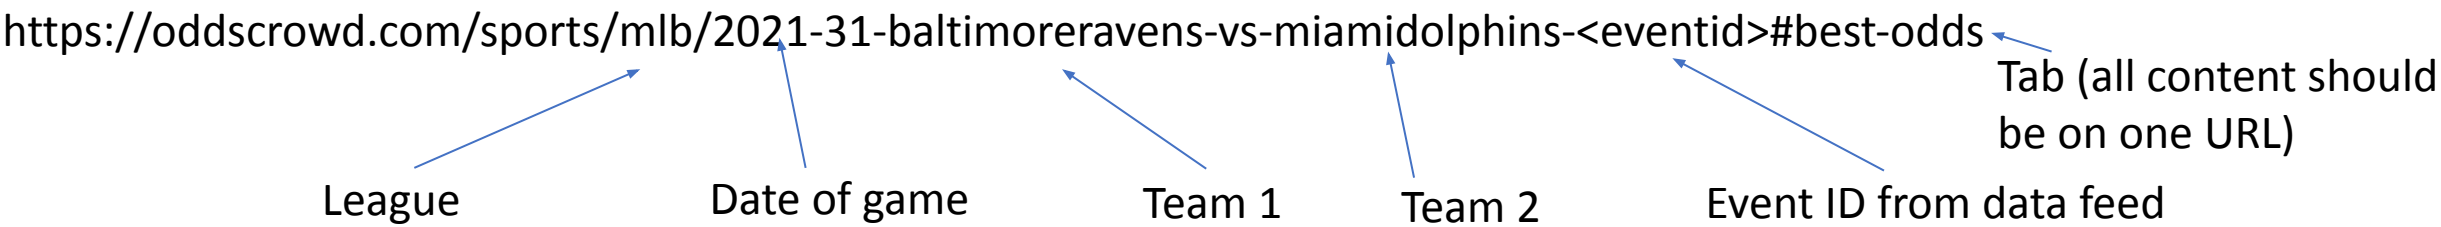

When reading a Total. The number without a plus or minus is the line. You have the option to place a bet that the score will be Over or Under that line. Alongside the Total is the odds. Some people call this the juice, the margin or the vig. This represents what you will be paid out the payout for the bet.

What is the small graph next to the team names?

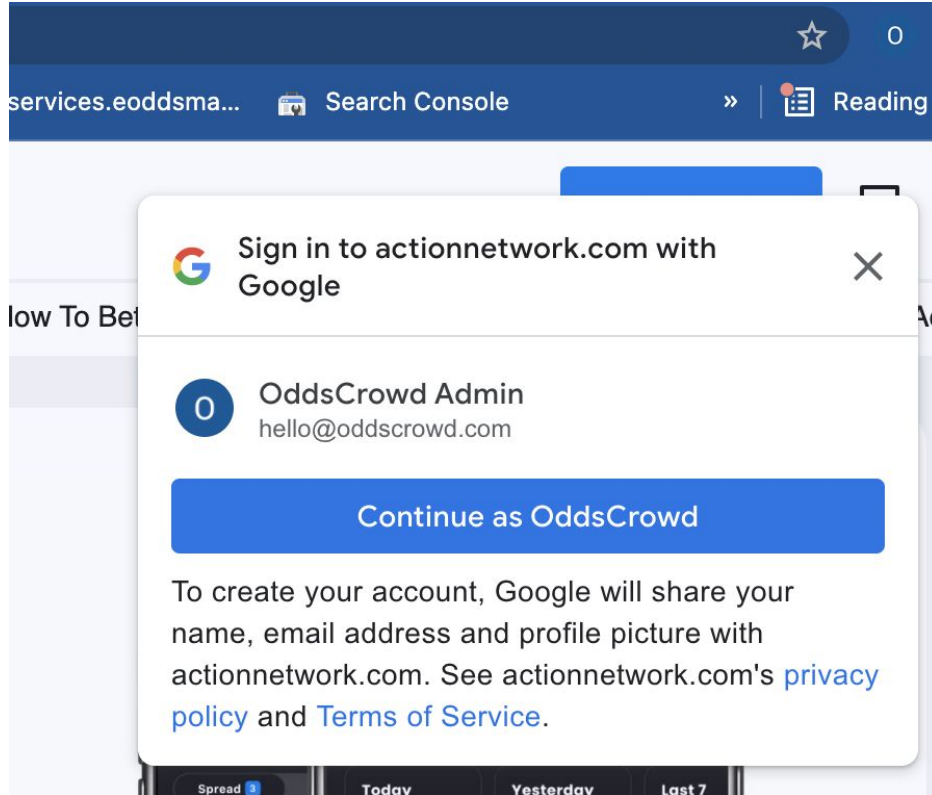

These graphs are designed to reflect market shifts. The line that shows what where its price has gone throughout betting. The left end of the graph was the opening price offered by the Sportsbooks. Then the right hand side shows the current odds.

Prices can fluctuate based on many factors. For example, some significant betting activity can occur immediately after odds are published by Sportsbooks. Or a team can be hit by injuries which might impact their likelihood of winning the game. Using theses graphs you will be able to see these trends.

Best NFL <insert League name> Picks

If you're searching for the best NFL <insert league name> Picks, you have come to the right place. On OddsCrowd, you will find two types of picks. Picks from the OddsCrowd Community and Picks from the OddsCrowd Algorithm. Both picks are some of the sharpest NFL <insert league name> available. Here's why:

Why follow the OddsCrowd Communities Picks?

OddsCrowd tracks the performance and profitability of every member's betting picks over time. We track Profitability, ROI, Strike Rate and Ranking against the rest of the OddsCrowd community. Unlike most other sites that offer bet tracking, our picks and odds cannot be edited or cancelled retrospectively. So you can trust that when you review another bettor's history, what you are looking at is an accurate reflection of their performance. So when you are following the top performer's picks, you can trust their betting capability. You don't need to just blindly follow their big claims of being a 'professional capper' or 'sharp'.

Why follow the OddsCrowd Algorithm's Picks?

OddsCrowd Algorithm uses advanced data monitoring and analytics to identify value driven picks. It aggregates the odds and line movements of the most advanced sportsbooks in the world to calculate what it deems the 'perfect odds' for every matchup. When the algorithm finds Odds by Legal US Sportsbooks that it determines offer value relative to its perfect odds, it recommends the bet. This is what is commonly referred to as +EV or 'Plus Expected Value' betting.

How should I interpret the OddsCrowd Algorithm's Picks?

The OddsCrowd algorithm's picks are determined by the value of the odds relative to the probability of the outcome happening. They should not be determined as a 'sure thing' or 'lock' like some betting analysts offer. If the OddsCrowd Algorithm is suggesting a pick, it is telling you it thinks that the probability of the bet winning is better relatively than what the odds being offered by Sportsbooks currently suggest.

Can the OddsCrowd Algorithm's Picks Change?

The OddsCrowd Algorithm's Picks recommended Picks do regularly change, and should only be followed at the specific time of publishing. For example, you might check one day before a game starts and it is recommending one pick. Then you might return 30 minutes before the game kicks off and the pick will not be suggested anymore. This is due to the fact that the Picks are based on the value of the odds being offered at the time, and odds change regularly.

What are NFL <insert league name> Spread Picks?

The most popular type of bet is the Spread or Point Spread. This essentially gives the Underdog a point handicap head start against the favourite. A favorite is the team likely to win and in turn is designated with a minus sign. The number designates the number of points the handicap is. An underdog is the team likely to lose. An underdog has a plus sign next to its odds.

When reading Spread Odds, alongside the points spread number is the odds. Some people call this 'the juice', 'the margin' or 'the vig'. This represents the payout for the bet.
