Remembrance Day

Red Poppy is the symbol of Remembrance Day

Along with various veterans of military conflicts in which Britain was involved, the local government marches in full uniform.

All services which are of uniform - police, fire, rescue, etc. - all solemnly marching in the streets.

Morning of November 11 is the laying of wreaths at war memorials around the country. Queen Elizabeth II in mourning attire takes place in front of the Cenotaph, a monument to the soldiers who fell in the First World War. Behind her, in uniform, lined up senior members of the Royal Family, as well as members of the British government. From the first stroke of Big Ben Field gun will fire, signifying the beginning of a 2-minute silence. The second shot to break the silence and opens the ceremony of laying wreaths of red poppies, the traditional colors of memory. Queen lays a wreath at the first.

In the process of participating elementary school students. For them it was a kind of a lesson in courage.

Ends with a solemn parade of the service in the church.

This holiday is also celebrated in Australia, Kenya, India, Bermuda, Barbados, Canada, and France.
