Killer: And now I'm givin' you one.

Killer: You take your time. Get yourself together.

Killer: I want your best game.

SHERLOCK: It's not a game. It's chance.

Killer: I've played four times. I'm alive. It's not chance, Mr Holmes, it's chess. It's a game of chess, with one move, and one survivor. And this ... this ... is the move.

(With his left hand he slides the left-hand bottle across the table towards Sherlock. He licks his top lip as he pulls his hand back and leaves the bottle where it is.)

Killer: Did I just give you the good bottle or the bad bottle? You can choose either one....

SHERLOCK: You can't just break into my flat.

LESTRADE: And you can't withhold evidence. And I didn't break into your flat.

SHERLOCK: Well, what do you call this then?

LESTRADE: It's a drugs bust.

JOHN: Seriously?! This guy, a junkie?! Have you met him?!

(Sherlock turns and walks closer to John, biting his lip nervously.)

SHERLOCK: John ...

JOHN (to Lestrade): I'm pretty sure you could search this flat all day, you wouldn't find anything you could call recreational.

JOHN: Yeah, but come on ...

JOHN: No.

SHERLOCK: What?

JOHN: You?

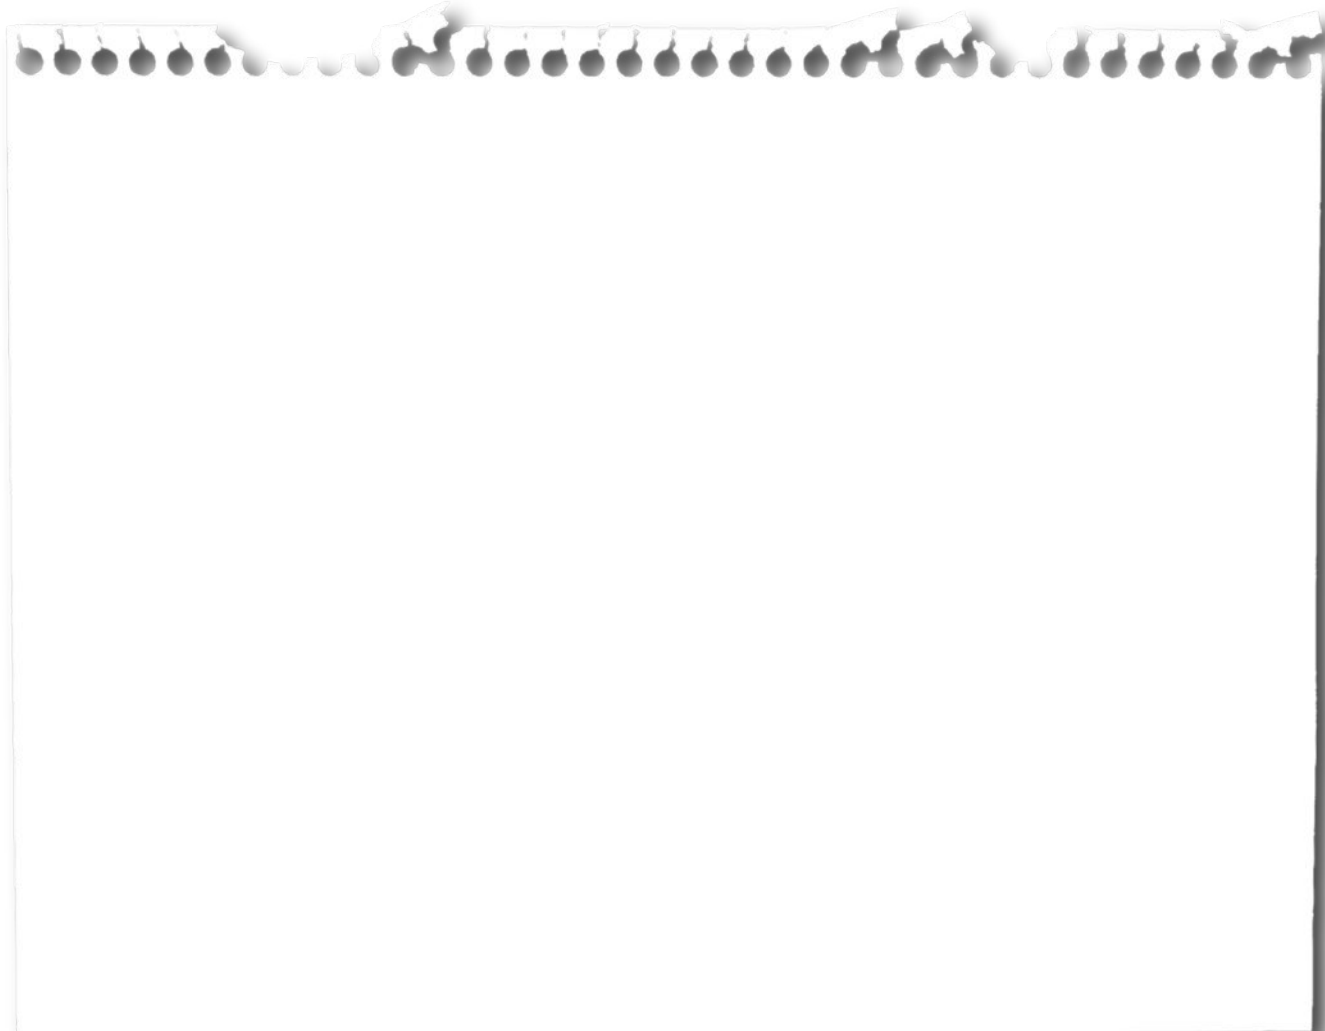

SHERLOCK (angrily): Shut up! (He turns back to Lestrade.)
