

St. Petersburg State University

The modern St. Petersburg State University is the successor of the Academic University, which was established simultaneously with the Academy of Sciences by decree of Peter I of January 28, 1724 and actually ceased to exist in 1766, being merged with the Academic Gymnasium into the Academy School no later than 1770.

A common version of the foundation of St. Petersburg State University.

Interesting facts

- More than 230 foreign universities from 60 countries of the world are partners of St. Petersburg State University
- Six graduates became heads of the Russian government

Thanks for your attention!

