What is the Day of National Independence in the USA?

IN CONGRESS, JULY 4, 1776.

The unanimous Declaration of the thirteen united States of America,

When in the course of human events it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the laws of Nature and of Nature's God entitle them, a solemn appeal to the Supreme Judge of the world is requisite that they present before the world the simple and unadorned truth. We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness. That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed. That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such Principles and organizing its Powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to promote their Safety and Happiness. Prudence, in such a Case, will dictate that Governments long established should not be changed for light and transient Causes; and accordingly we have suffered the longest Sufferance, than it is right to shut our Eyes to, and to change our ancient and approved Forms of Government. But when a long Train of Abuses and Usurpations, which have assumed a Character of Consequence, impels the People to alter their former Constitutions, the first Principle of Wisdom, in such a Case, is that they should begin the Declaration of Independence, and that they should do so in a solemn and public Manner, and that they should do so in a manner which will be a full and complete Declaration of Independence, and that they should do so in a manner which will be a full and complete Declaration of Independence, and that they should do so in a manner which will be a full and complete Declaration of Independence.
