

Social media in our life

What is social media?

Web-sites that users can easily participate in, share and create content for, including blogs, social networks, wikis, forums and virtual worlds.

At this time, there are basically six kinds of social media.

Basic forms of social media

Social networks

sites that allow people to build personal web pages and then connect with friends to share content and communication.

The biggest social networks are MySpace, Facebook and Bebo.

The Facebook logo, consisting of the word "facebook" in white lowercase letters on a dark blue rectangular background.The MySpace logo, featuring a stylized icon of three people in white and grey, followed by the word "myspace" in white lowercase letters and a trademark symbol on a dark blue rectangular background.The Bebo logo, featuring a red circle with a white lowercase "b" inside, followed by the word "ebo" in black lowercase letters on a white background.

Talking Points Memo

by joshua micah marshall

(December 6th, 2002 -- 3:20 PM EST // link)

Hard-hitting coverage? We report, you decide.

I've always thought that for all the jokes about age and longevity in office, the one line that really captures how long Strom Thurmond has been around is this: he ran for president against Harry Truman.

Do you really have to say any more than that?

Of course, Thurmond ran as the presidential candidate on the "States-Rights Democrat" or "Dixiecrat" ticket -- a candidacy that was based exclusively and explicitly upon the preservation of legalized segregation and opposition to voting rights and civil rights for blacks.

There's a sort of agreement in Washington these days -- with Thurmond's retirement and hundredth birthday -- to sort of forget about all that unpleasantness.

But look at what Trent Lott said about that candidacy yesterday...

I want to say this about my state: When Strom Thurmond ran for president we voted for him. We're proud of it. And if the rest of the country had of followed our lead we wouldn't of had all these problems over all these years, either.

Oh, what could have been!!! Just another example of the hubris now reigning among Capitol Hill Republicans.

Microblogging social networking combined with bite-sized blogging, where small amounts of content ('updates') are distributed online and through the mobile phone network. Twitter is the clear leader in this field.

so how big a deal is social media?

Very big indeed.

As of 16 February 2011, there were over
156 million public blogs in existence

We spend around 2.9 billion hours on YouTube in a month — over 325,000 years.

There are more than 800 million active users
on social network Facebook.

How social networks work

The image shows a screenshot of Mark Zuckerberg's Facebook profile as it appeared in 2006. The page layout includes a top navigation bar with the Facebook logo and links for home, search, browse, invite, help, and logout. Below this is the profile header with the name 'Mark Zuckerberg's Profile' and the affiliation 'Harvard'. A search bar is located on the left side. The main content area is divided into several sections: a profile picture of Mark Zuckerberg, a 'View More Photos of Mark (101)' link, a 'View All Mark's Friends' link, a 'Send Mark a Message' link, a 'Poke Him!' link, an 'Add Mark as a Friend' link, and a 'Report this Person' link. The 'Status' section shows a message: 'Mark isn't receiving Facebook texts right now.' Below this is the 'Harvard Friends' section, which lists '146 friends at Harvard' and includes a 'See All' link. The 'Information' section is divided into several sub-sections: 'Account Info' (Name: Mark Zuckerberg, Networks: Harvard Facebook, San Francisco, CA, Last Update: August 14, 2006), 'Basic Info' (Sex: Male, Relationship Status: In a Relationship, Residence: Kirland, Birthday: May 14, 1984, Hometown: Dobbs Ferry, NY), 'Contact Info' (Email: mzuckerb@fas.harvard.edu), 'Personal Info' (Activities: lots of facebook, Interests: information flow, exponential growth, minimalism, meditation, driving, writing, making things, social dynamics, domination, Favorite Music: green day, franz ferninand, weezer, fall out boy, my chemical romance, Favorite Books: mostly biographies and textbooks, Favorite Quotes: never run out of ammo), 'About Me' (i make things that increase information flow between people), 'Education Info' (College: Harvard, High School: Phillips Exeter Academy '02), and 'Work Info' (Company: Facebook, Time Period: 2004 - Present, Description: i like making things.).

Social networks on the web are like contained versions of the sprawling blog network. People joining a social network usually to create a profile and then build a network by connecting to friends and contacts in the network, or by inviting real-world contacts and friends to join the social network.

MySpace allows members to create vivid, chaotic home pages to which they can upload images, videos and music. It has built a lot of its popularity around its music services. There are said to be over three million bands and musicians registered on it, trying to attract a fan base from the 200 million registered accounts.

Facebook allow anyone to develop applications and run them on Facebook - without charging them. Facebook users able to play each other at Scrabble and Chess, compare each others' tastes and send 'virtual gifts', among any number of new ideas vying for attention.

VKontakte is a Russian social network service popular in Russia, Ukraine, Kazakhstan, and Belarus. VK offers a striking similarity in design and functionality to its US rival Facebook, and as such has been described as a "Facebook clone". Like Facebook, VK allows users to message contacts publicly or privately, create groups and events, share and tag images and video, and play browser-based games.
