

The problem of the dying Aral sea

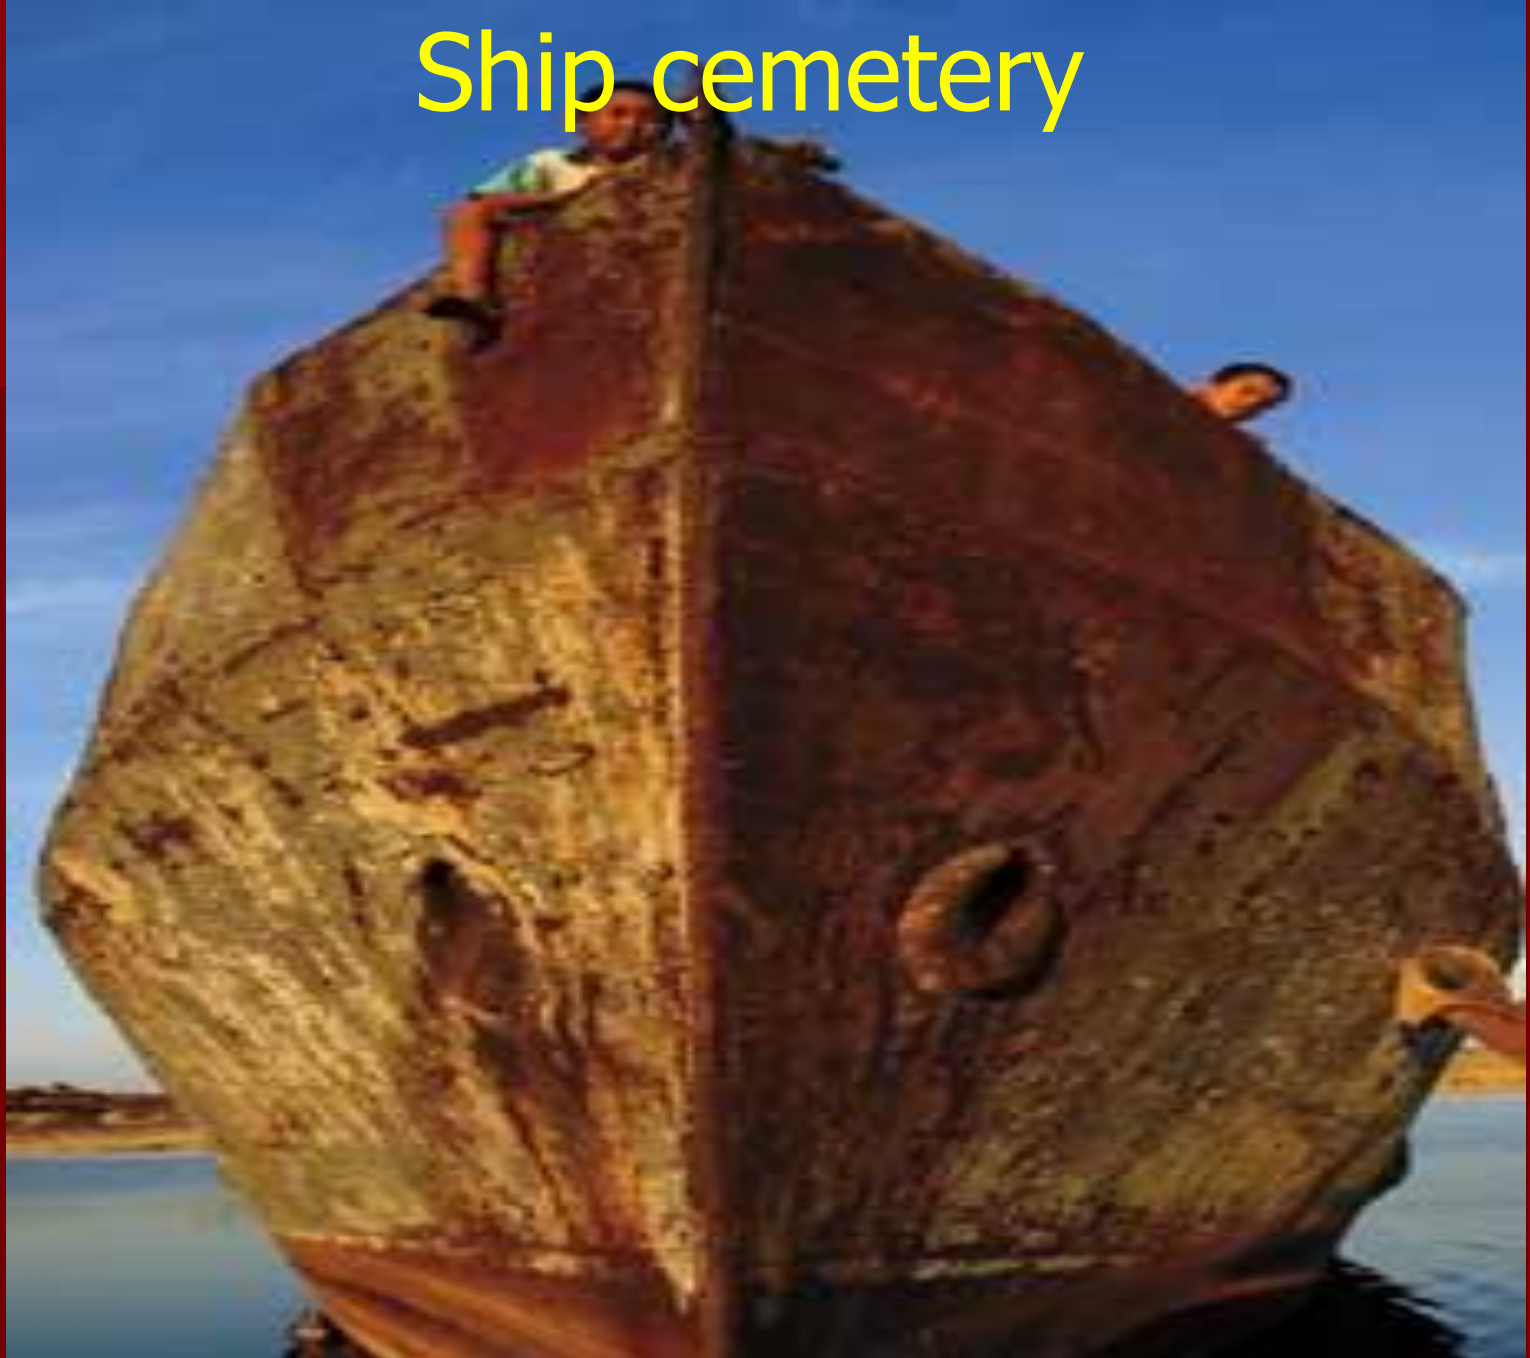

Aral today

The Aral Sea is one of the environmental disasters of the world.

Thousands of ships are on the dried-up area of the Aral Sea...

The former port of Aral, Kazakhstan

Once the major fishing port in Uzbekistan on the southern shore of the Aral sea, Moynaq now stands 130 km away and suffers as a result economically as well as environmentally.

Former Aral Sea port of Gdansk in Kazakhstan, the sea has massively shrunk due to misuse of water resources started by the Soviets.

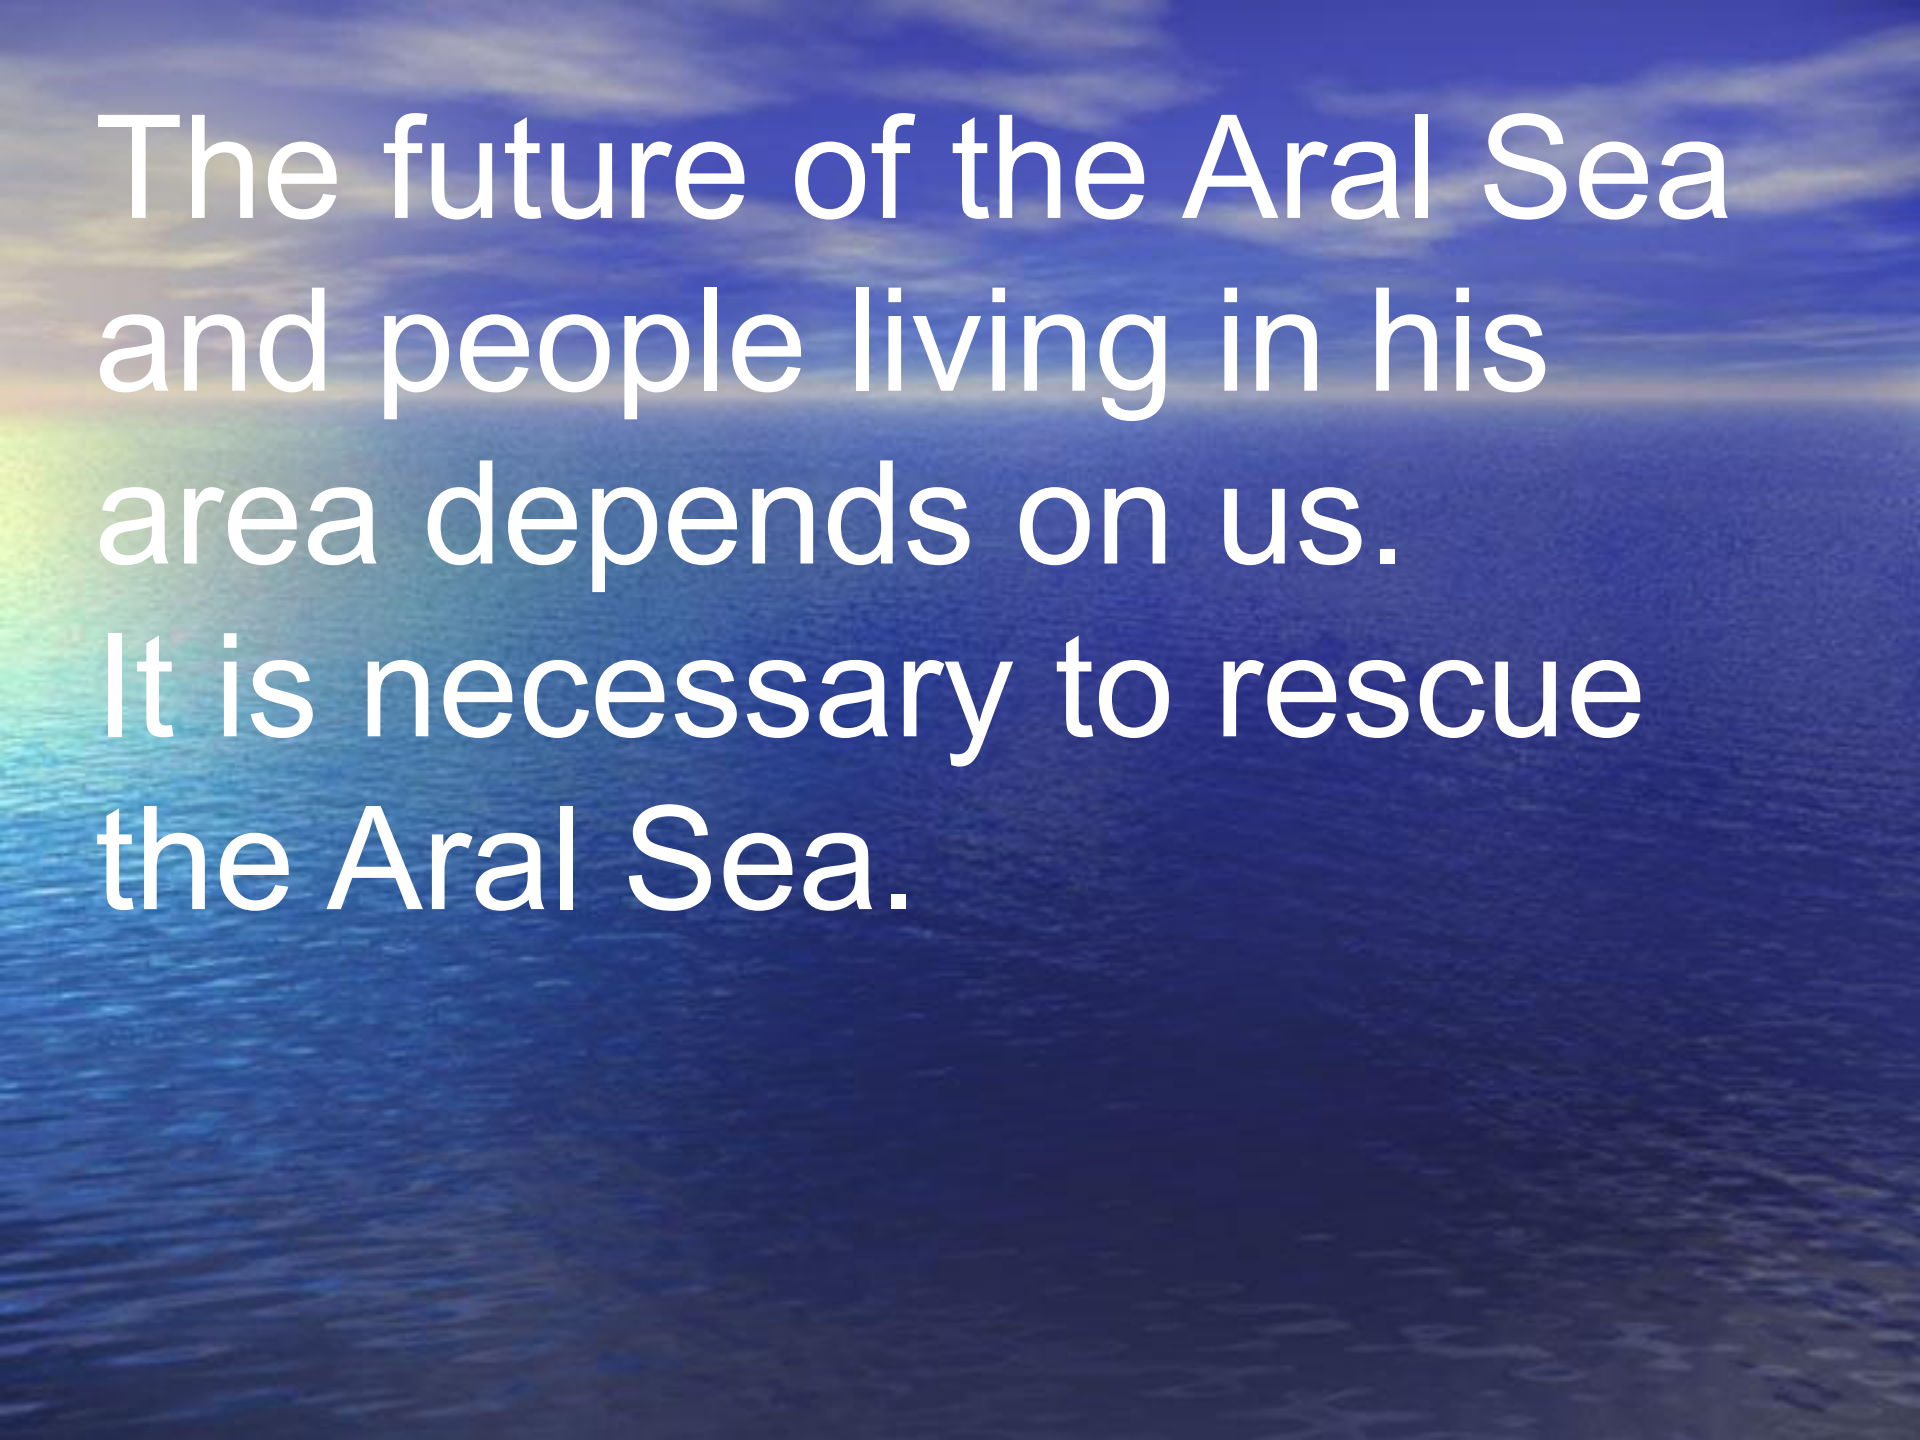

The air has salt, dust and pollutant blown from the sea. Many people and animals suffer from different illnesses.
