The skill and creativity shown by the weavers come from years of practice. Most weavers work on their rigs at home, while also tending to the daily chores of cooking, child care, going to the store, and herding sheep. The weavers here each work about forty hours a week and are paid on hourly wages to demonstrate their craft. The rigs they make are well known for their excellent weaving skills and have won awards in international and rug shows.

Although many Navajo speak both Navajo and English, these women speak Navajo and very little English. Please direct your questions to the information desk clerk, the ranger on duty, or to the interpretor. If you are interested in purchasing one of these rigs or ordering another, contact the trader at Hubbell Trading Post.

THE WEAVE
The Navajo have a rich and colorful weaving tradition. The Navajo have a long history of weaving and their rugs are known for their intricate designs and vibrant colors. The Navajo have a unique style of weaving that is passed down from generation to generation. The Navajo have a deep appreciation for their weaving tradition and their rugs are a source of pride and identity for them.
