SHE WRITES ALL OF HER BOOKS IN LONGHAND, RATHER THAN WITH A COMPUTER.

«J.K.R.»

When the first "Harry Potter" novel was published, the publisher asked her to use initials rather than her first name, because boys would be biased against a book written by a woman. Since she only had one given name, they then asked her to make up another initial; she took "K." from her favorite grandmother, Kathleen.

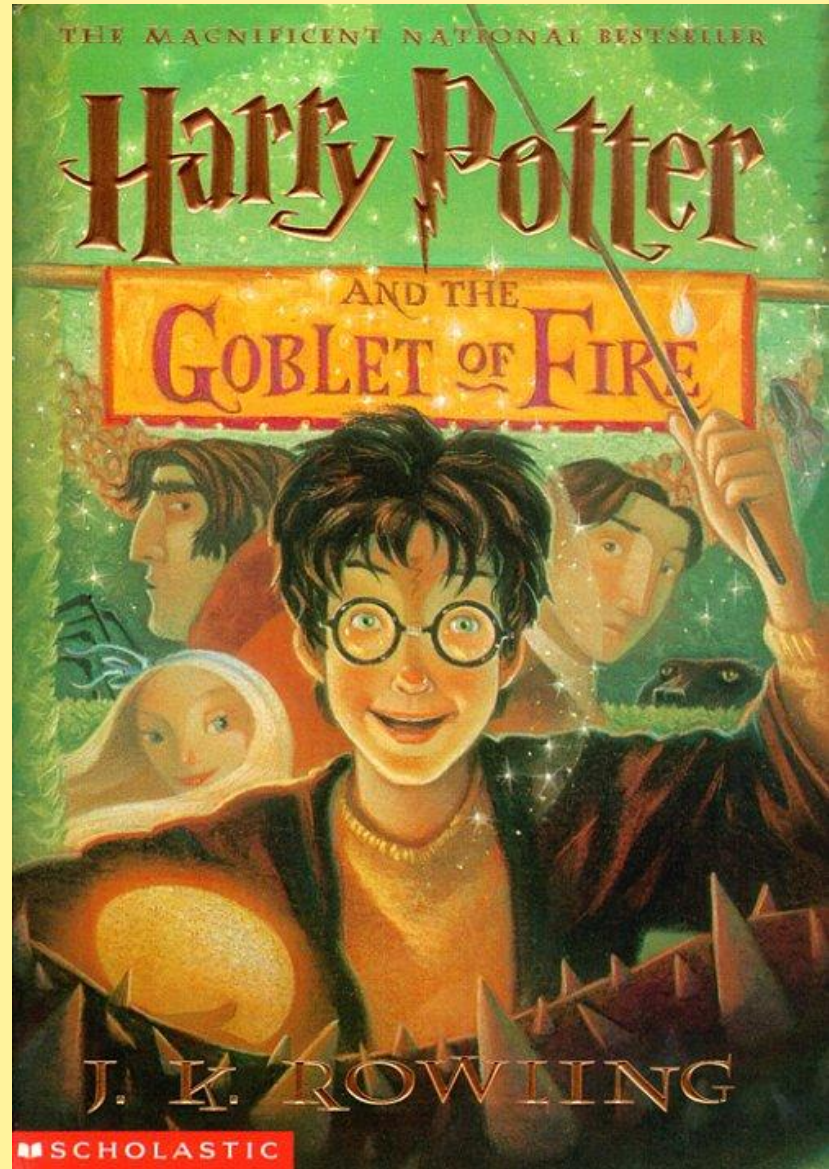

THE ELEPHANT HOUSE

"The Elephant House" –

Harry Potter

In October 1998, Warner Bros. purchased the film rights to the first two novels for a seven-figure sum

Harry Potter

The image shows the title 'Harry Potter' in a highly stylized, three-dimensional font. The letters are rendered in a metallic, blue-silver color with a reflective, crystalline texture. The font is a gothic or blackletter style, with sharp, pointed serifs and a complex, interlocking structure. The title is set against a solid black background, which makes the metallic letters stand out prominently. The overall appearance is that of a movie title card or a logo for the film series.

Rowling had gained some creative control on the films, reviewing all the scripts as well as acting as a producer on the final two-part installment, Deathly Hallows

Forbes* has named Rowling as the first person to become a U.S.-dollar billionaire by writing books, the second-richest female entertainer and the 1,062nd richest person in the world

She was awarded the O.B.E. (Officer of the Order of the British Empire) in the 2000 Queen Elizabeth II's Birthday Honors List for her services to literature and received it from one of her fans, Prince Charles, the Prince of Wales.

Rowling, once a single parent herself, is now president of the charity Gingerbread (originally One Parent Families)

In 2006, Rowling
contributed a substantial sum toward the creation of a new Centre for Regenerative Medicine at Edinburgh University

In September 2008, on the eve of the Labour Party Conference, Rowling announced that she had donated £1 million to the Labour Party

She believes that poor and vulnerable families will fare much better under the Labour Party than they would under a Cameron-led Conservative Party

As a resident of Scotland, Rowling is eligible to vote in the 2014 referendum on Scottish independence, and intends to vote in favour of the union

Over the years, some religious people have decried Rowling's books for supposedly promoting witchcraft; however, Rowling identifies as a Christian

Rowling has received honorary degrees from St Andrews University, the University of Edinburgh, Napier University, the University of Exeter, the University of Aberdeen and Harvard University, for whom she spoke at the 2008 commencement ceremony. In 2009 Rowling was awarded the Légion d'honneur by French President Nicolas Sarkozy
