Street dance is a term, used to describe dance styles in the streets, school yards and nightclubs.

Street Dance is a mix of various dancing genres, beginning from style Hip-Hop and to Break Dance. Street Dance has been born in streets of cities, noisy roads and includes elements of a jazz and classics.

Street dance began appearing in the United States in the 1970s. These dances are popular as a form of physical exercise, an art form, and for competition, and are today practiced both at dance studios and other spaces. Some schools use street dance as a form of physical education.

Characteristics

Improvisation
is the heart
of most
street
dances.

Dancers interpret
the existing moves
freely and even invent new ones to create a personal
style of their own.

Competitions

Today, serious street dance competitions are increasingly popular, and a number of large annual international events are taking place around the world, such as Battle of the Year, Juste Debout and House Dance International.

Style s

Some of the most famous street dance styles of today, such as breakdance, popping and locking, began appearing around the 1970s.

More recently, new street dance styles are emerging. Krumping, is an example of such a style that just recently became publicly known. Such styles are generally focused more on choreography and performance and less on improvisation and battles.

In general, street dance is based on unique style or on the emotions expressed through dance, usually connected with a certain genre of music. New dancing movements come to light on the basis of sensations, dance constantly develops.

All movements have been born in streets. Street Dance it is possible to dance as in steam, and to one, or in a circle of the same fans of modern dances.

My opinion

*There are many various directions:
goths, emo, skinheads. It is impossible to tell precisely if it is well or bad!
After all each person has his own opinion! Tastes differ!*
