

Magic Beauty of Scotland landscape

The Lake District National Park covers the area of north-west England known as the Lake District. The National Park was formed in 1951 to protect the landscape from industry or commerce could cause. Almost all of the land in the Park is in private ownership. In common with all other National Parks in England, there

Lake District National Park landscape

www.ecosystema.ru

The highest mountains in England are within the Park boundary. Farmland, hill and settlement add aesthetic value to the natural scenery with an ecology modified by human influence for millennia and including important wildlife habitats.

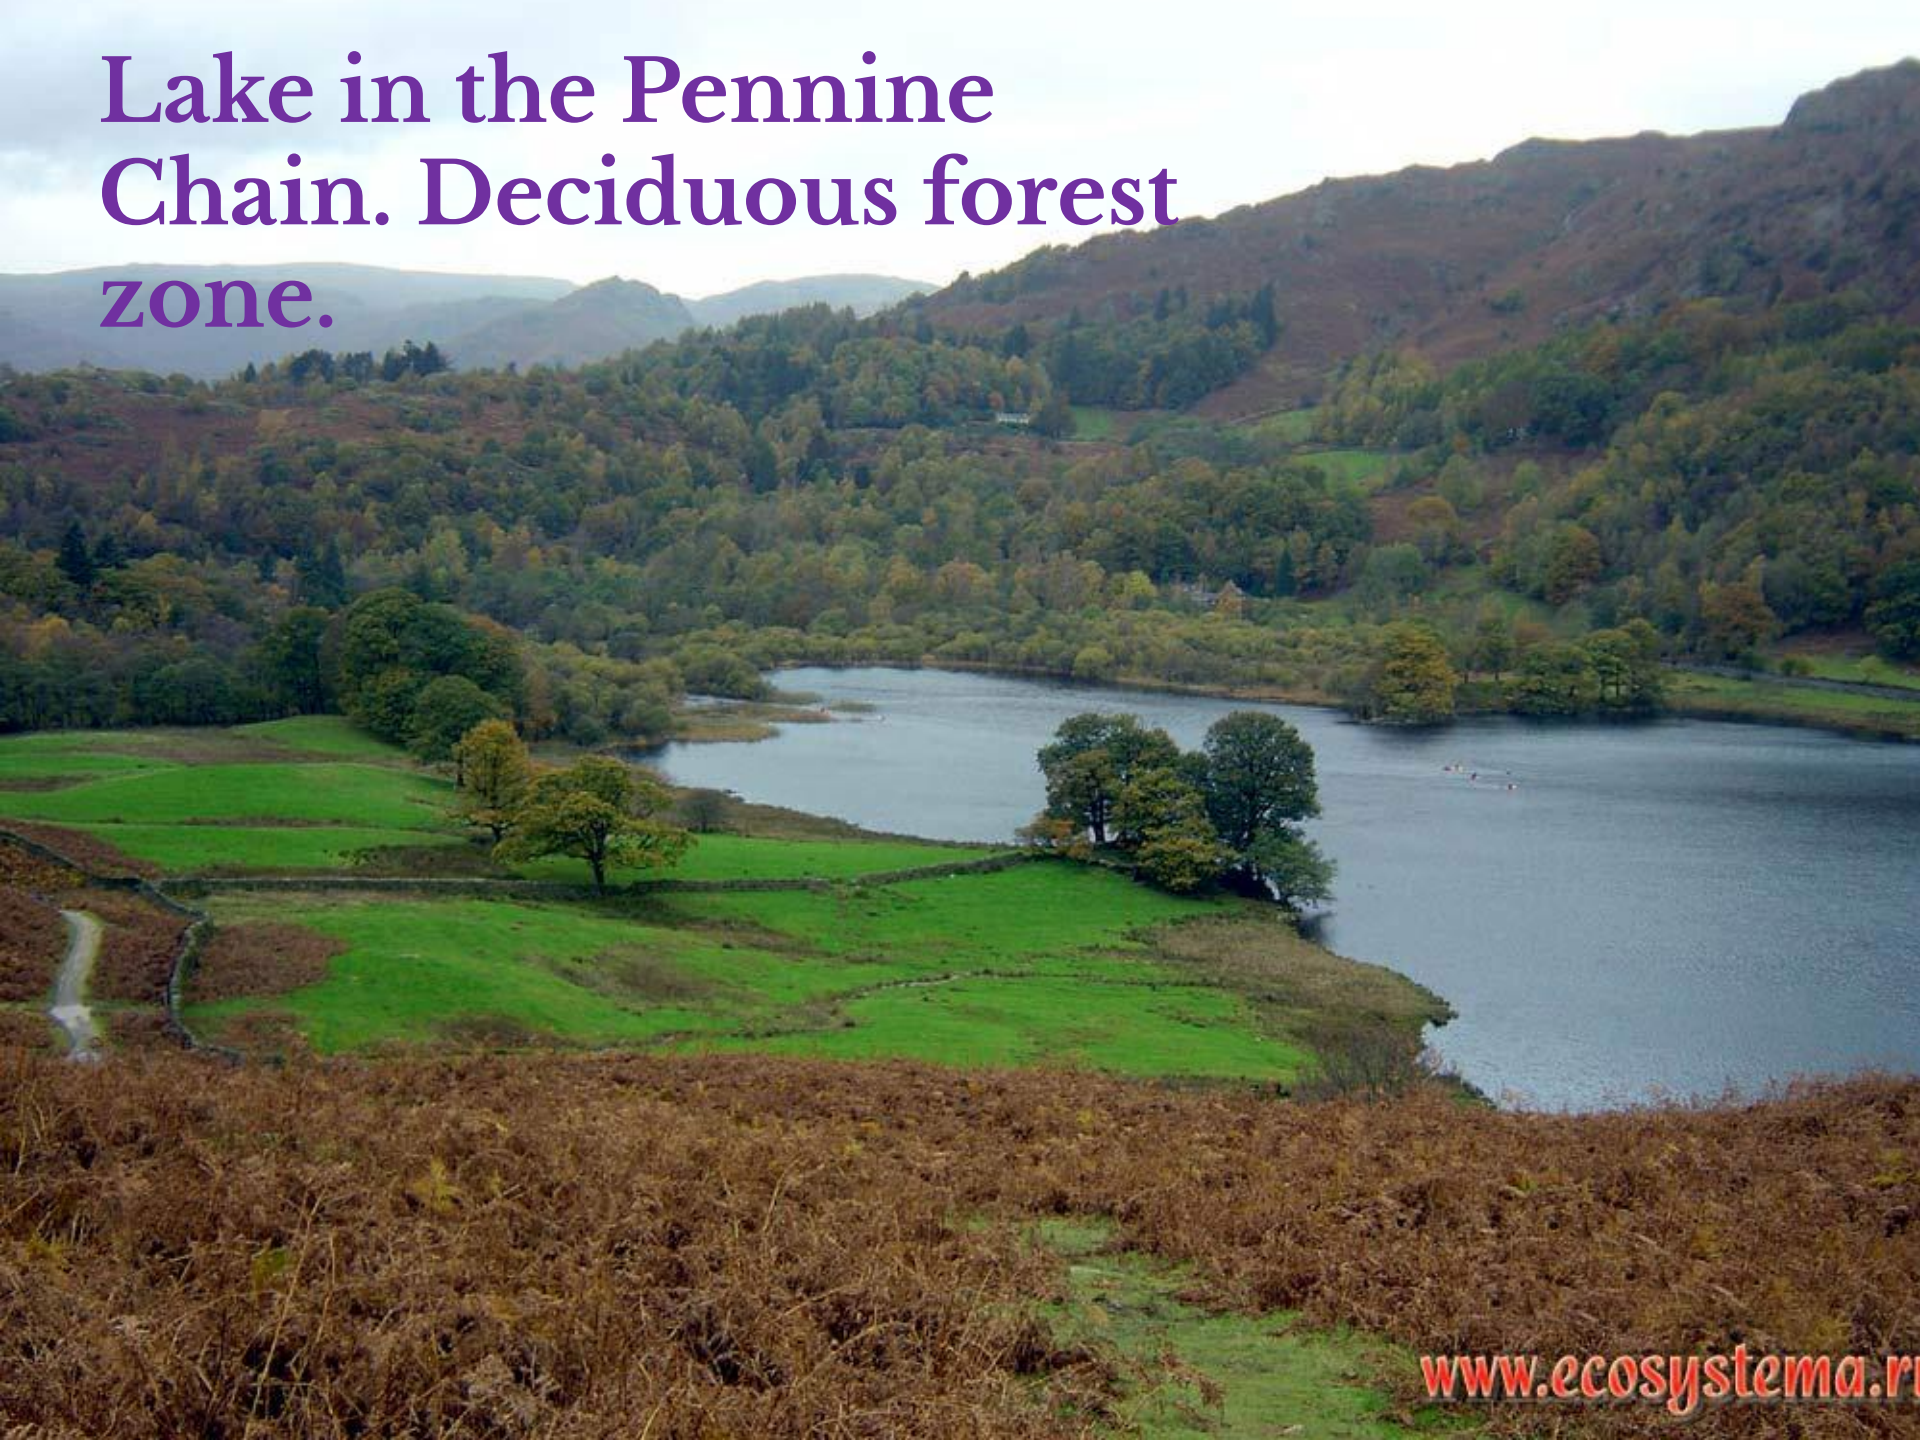

The Pennines , in the north, are a large chain of limestone hills with moorland tops rising to between 600 and 900 metres. The chain runs from Scotland to halfway down the length of England, splitting

Pennine Chain Fern thicket

The Pennines are sometimes called the backbone of England. Other names for the Pennines are Pennine Chain or Pennine Hills.

Lake in the Pennine Chain. Deciduous forest zone.

DECIDUOUS FOREST

Lake in the Pennine Chain

Lake in the Pennine Chain. Deciduous forest zone

Agricultural landscape at the Lake District National Park

www.ecosystema.ru

The Grampian Mountains (Grampians)

The typical mountain landscape in the Grampian Mountains, or Grampians (Northern Scottish Highlands) in the high altitude zone

Agricultural fields (pastures) at the foothills alternate with fern waste grounds, then herb grass meadows and heath on the top of the hills.

The Grampian Mountains, or Grampians, Northern Scottish

Sheep pasture in Grampian Mountains, or Grampians. Northern Scottish Highlands, Scotland, Great Britain

Horse pasture in Grampian Mountains, or Grampians. Northern Scottish Highlands, Scotland, Great Britain

The coniferous forest with spruce predominance.

Altitude is about 500 meters above sea level.

The Grampian Mountains, or Grampians,
Northern Scottish Highlands, Scotland, Great Britain

www.ecosystema.ru

www.ecosystema.ru