

Welcome to Great Britain

ELIZABETH THE II

BUCKINGHAM PALACE

LONDON NATIONAL GALLERY

TOWER OF LONDON

TOWER BRIDGE

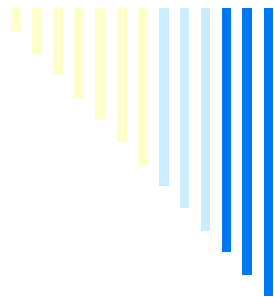

LONDON EYE BY DAY

LONDON EYE AT NIGHT

STONEHENGE

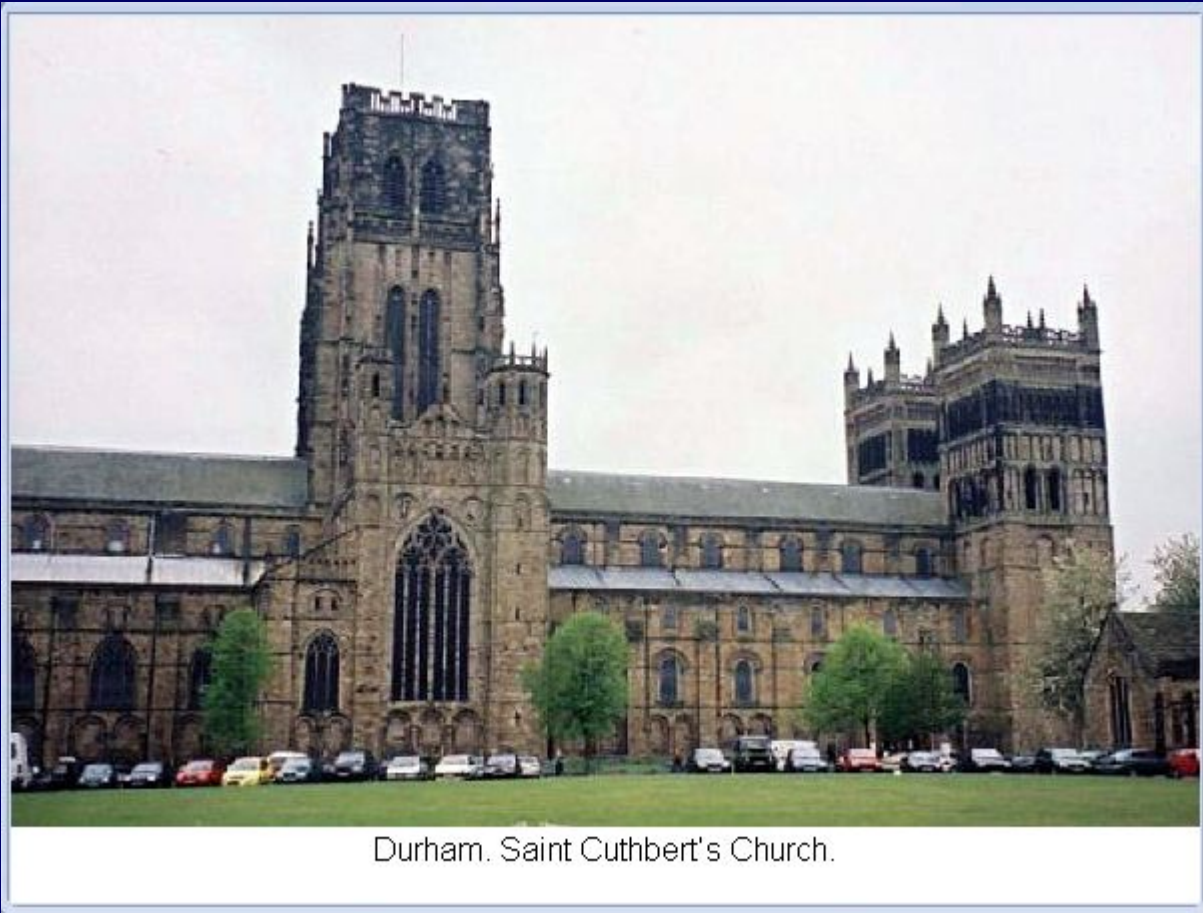

STONEHENGE

The land of Britain continues to preserve the history of the ancient peoples that once inhabited it. There are many architectural monuments remaining from the time of the Roman Empire. This is the huge defensive Adrian Wall - 118 kilometers long - that was to protect Rome's possessions in present-day Southern England from the raids of the warring Britts.

It is known that the Romans were extremely fond of all kinds of baths. They were the first to discover the curative properties of thermal (radon) waters and founded the town of Aqua Salts. Today, it is one of the most popular spas in the world - the city of Bath.

The mysterious Stonehenge is a remarkable structure of the Stone Age. Besides Stonehenge, there are also other ritual structures dating back to the Stone Age. The heritage of the Celts is indeed amazing. This horse of chalk from a hill in Beckshire shows an ancient Celtic goddess. The local residents have been looking after this monument for 2,000 years already.

DURHAM

Durham. Saint Cuthbert's Church.

DURHAM CATHEDRAL

BIG BEN

LONDON FOG

LONDON AT NIGHT

LONDON

LONDON

THE HOUSES OF PARLIAMENT

WESTMINSTER ABBEY

THE UNITED KINGDOM OF GREAT BRITAIN AND NORTHERN IRELAND (THE UK)

The UK consists of Scotland, Wales, Northern Ireland and England. The capital of the UK is London. The UK is washed by the Irish sea, the North sea and the Atlantic ocean.

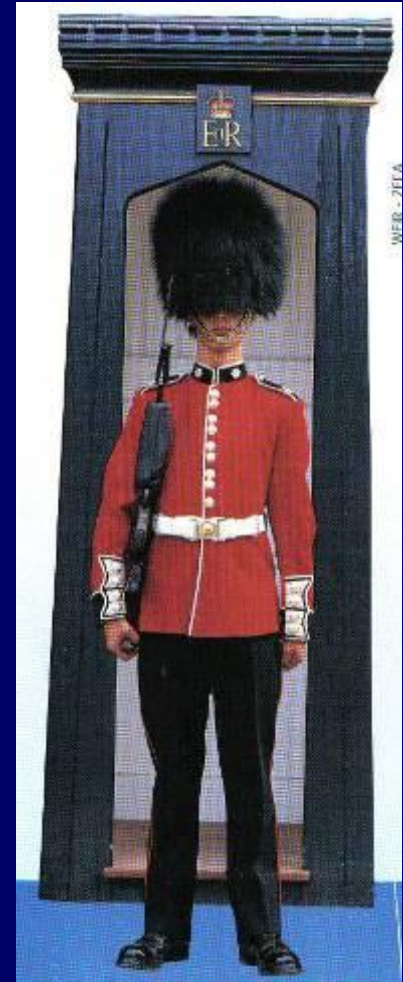

London. The Thames

Red telephone

Red post

John Bull.

- John Bull is the symbol of the typical Englishman. He is often drawn in cartoons or pictures about England. He was invented in 1712 by a political writer John Arbuthnot. John Bull is drawn as a big man with a large stomach and a round face. He wears high boots, an open jacket and a Union Jack waistcoat. He often has a bulldog with him.