

The Two Sides in the Civil War

The Reds

The Bolshevik Party

Industrial workers in the towns and cities

Former soldiers and sailors

Some of the peasants

The Whites

Supporters of the Tsar

Supporters of the Provisional Government

The Social Revolutionaries

The Mensheviks

Landowners

Factory owners

The Church

Some of the peasants

Some Russians refused to support either the REDS or the WHITES

In the Ukraine, the courageous peasant leader, Nestor Makhno fought against the REDS and the WHITES. He wanted the peasants to be able to run their own lives.
Eventually he had to flee overseas and went to live in France.

In charge of the Red Army

Leon Trotsky

In charge of the White Army

Admiral Kolchak

General
Yudenitch

General
Deniken

The Civil War : Advantages and Disadvantages

Controlled the main industries

Controlled the railways

Red army was under unified control of Trotsky and followed Bolshevik ideas

Communication among the Reds was relatively easy

Did not control any of the main industries

Only controlled a section of the trans-Siberian railway

White army disunited under several different leaders with different aims and ideas

Communication among the Whites was very difficult

The Whites had assistance from the Allies who sent troops to help

USA

FRANCE

UK

Why did the Allies intervene on the side of the Whites?

To prevent supplies that they had sent to Russia from falling into German hands.

To help the Whites to continue the war against Germany

To try to prevent the Bolsheviks from winning the Civil War and spreading Communism

The Fate of the Royal Family

The Tsar and his family were taken captive by the Bolsheviks and moved to Ekaterinburg under house arrest

By July 1918, Admiral Kolchak and his army were close to Ekaterinburg. They would soon be in a position to rescue the Tsar

The Bolsheviks decided to kill the Tsar and all of the royal family. Tsar = symbol of old empire = reason to unite the Whites.

The Tsar and his family were killed by members of the local CHEKA but the order seems to have been given by LENIN

“We decided it here. Vladimir Ilyich (Lenin) believed that we shouldn’t leave the Whites a live banner to rally round”

(Sverdlov. Secretary of the Communist Party talking to Trotsky in 1918

Reasons for the Bolshevik victory

- Trotsky creates efficient and well organised Red army
- Reds united behind Bolshevik Ideas
- Reds have strategic advantages (industrial cities and railways)
- Communication was easier in the Red controlled area
- Allied support for Whites allows the Reds to be seen as 'patriots'

Reasons for the Whites' defeat

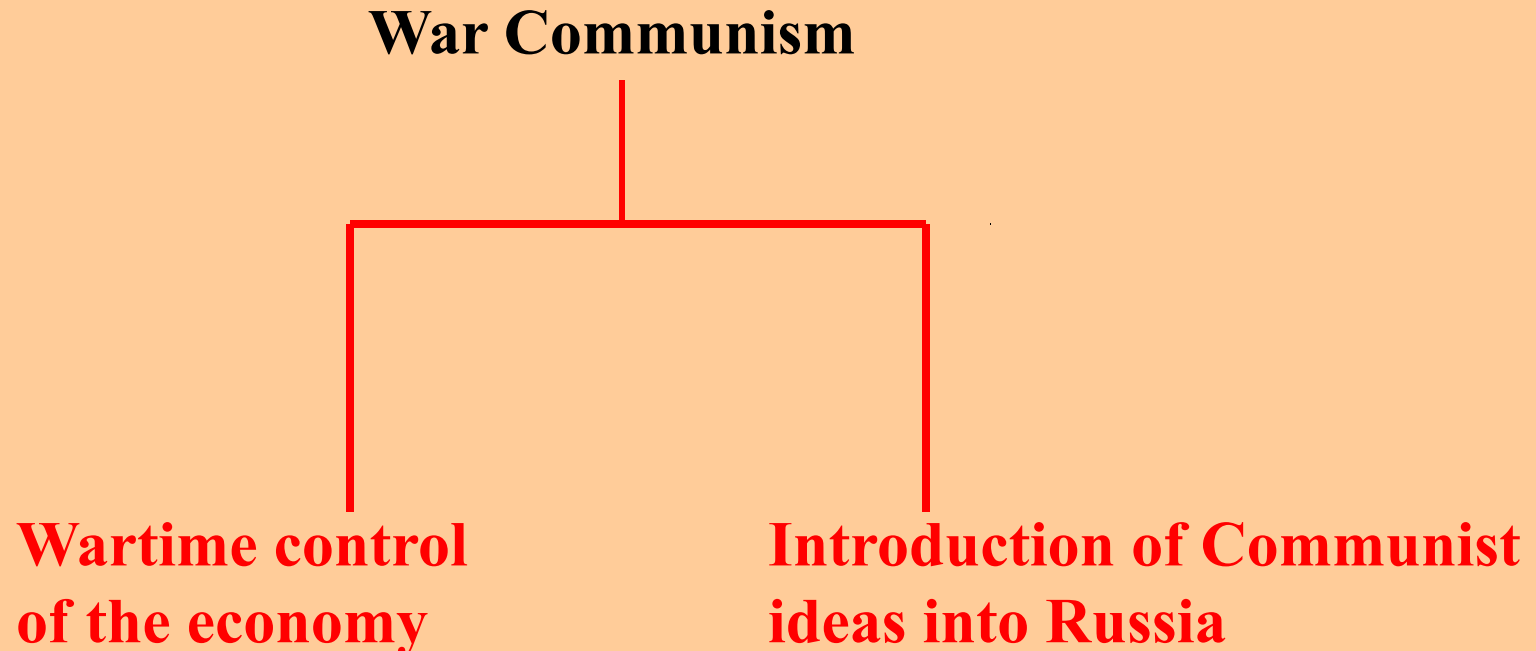

- Poor leadership and lack of organisation in the White army
- Whites were divided and disunited and were associated with the Tsarist government which was hated by the vast majority of Russians.
- Whites controlled few industries and only a small section of railway
- Communication was difficult in the huge White controlled area
- The Whites seen as unpatriotic because of Allied support for them.

The Policy of War Communism.

During the Civil War, Lenin introduced the policy of War Communism in Russia

There were two reasons for this policy:

Nationalisation of Industries

Private Trade forbidden

Food requisitioned from the peasants

Transport taken over by the Government

WAR COMMUNISM

Labour controlled by the Government

Rationing introduced

The Failure of War Communism

The Policy of War Communism failed to improve the Russian economy.

During the period of War Communism, the production of grain declined and only recovered after 1923

The fall in Grain production led to food shortages and starvation

Scenes like this were common in many Russian villages during the civil war

During the period of War Communism, industrial production also declined.

Coal

From 29m to 9m tons

Oil

From 9.3m
to 3.8m tons

Steel

From 4.3m
to 0.2 m tons

Bricks

From 2.1m to 0.1m tons

The Kronstadt Rebellion

The policy of War Communism became very unpopular

In March 1921 there was a rebellion against Lenin by the sailors of the Kronstadt Naval base near St Petersburg Troubles □ Kronstadt sailors active supporters of revolution.

Many participated in October revolution

Demands of the Kronstadt Sailors

Elections to the Soviets by secret ballot

Freedom of speech

Freedom for Trade Unions

Release of all political prisoners

End to requisitioning of grain from the peasants

The Kronstadt Naval Base is attacked by the Red army over the frozen ice

Although Lenin crushed the rebellion, he realised that he would have to change the policy of War Communism or risk being overthrown.

The New Economic Policy (NEP)

Lenin decided that there was so much opposition to the policy of war communism that it had to be changed.

He wanted the change to be temporary: he would re-introduce communism when the time was right.

We'll take one step back, but later make two ahead

In 1921, he decided to replace War Communism with.....
the New Economic Policy (NEP)

The NEW Economic Policy (NEP)

The New Economic Policy helped Russian agriculture and industry to gradually improve.

NEP

▼ The effects of the NEP (official government figures).

Grain Production increased after NEP was introduced

Iron Production increased after NEP was introduced

Coal and Oil production also increased as a result of NEP

Railway transport was also improved

The success of the NEP

The success of the NEP helped to keep Lenin and the Bolsheviks in Power.

The Peasants supported the end of grain requisitioning and began to grow more grain and sell the surplus. More food was now available in the towns and cities.

Private businessmen and traders were happy with their right to set up their own shops and businesses

The workers in the industrial towns and cities supported NEP because it helped to increase the supply of food and also helped to increase the number of jobs available in industry

The criticism of the NEP

- Anti-communist ideology – not everyone equal
- Growth due to restoration. From zero to hero
- Scissors Crisis – industrial prices grew up, agriculture goods fall down.
- NEP focused on agriculture and so growth in industry were only relatively high
