Key words and concepts: lexicology, word, lexical item, lexeme, vocabulary, system

The object of lexicology

- Lexicology (from Gr lexis 'word' and logos 'learning' is the part of linguistics dealing with the vocabulary of the language and the properties of words as the main units of language.
- Vocabulary is the system formed by the sum total of all the words and word equivalents that the language possesses.
- The word is the basic unit of a language resulting from the association of a particular meaning with a particular group of sounds capable of a particular grammatical employment.

Structural features of the word:

- The modern approach to word studies is based on distinguishing between the external and internal structures of the word.
- The external structure of the word, or its morphological structure (item and arrangement) is studied in part 1 word-building (word-formation). The internal (semantic) structure of the word, or its meaning, is studied in the course of semantics (part 2).
- Formal unity
- Semantic unity (conveys one concept)

Words: for and against

- Wordsmithery
- Wordsmiths, word-buffs, wordaholics
- 1 wine/film/opera etc buff someone who is interested in wine, films etc and knows a lot about them
- A word is medicine to the wise (Telugu)
- A word spoken at the right moment is like a golden apple on a silver dish (Silesian)
- Words are good but hens lay eggs (German)

How big a vocabulary do you need?

- 5000 word families to do an undergraduate degree but 8000 to understand a newspaper
- The words we should teach: the top 2000 frequent words of the language; learning takes several years
- Plus 570 words of core academic vocabulary to study in English, etc
- Graded readers and simplified texts are the best methods of reinforcing vocabulary and improving reading fluency
