Unit of measure

Capabilities possessed by the organization as a whole as distinct from the individuals. Some companies perform extraordinary feats with ordinary people

A coherent set of actions aimed at gaining a sustainable advantage over competition

Those ideas of what is right and desirable (in corporate and/or individual behavior) which are typical of the organization and common to most of its members

The organization chart and accompanying baggage that show who reports to whom and how tasks are both divided up and integrated

The people in the organization, considered in terms of corporate demographics, not individual personalities

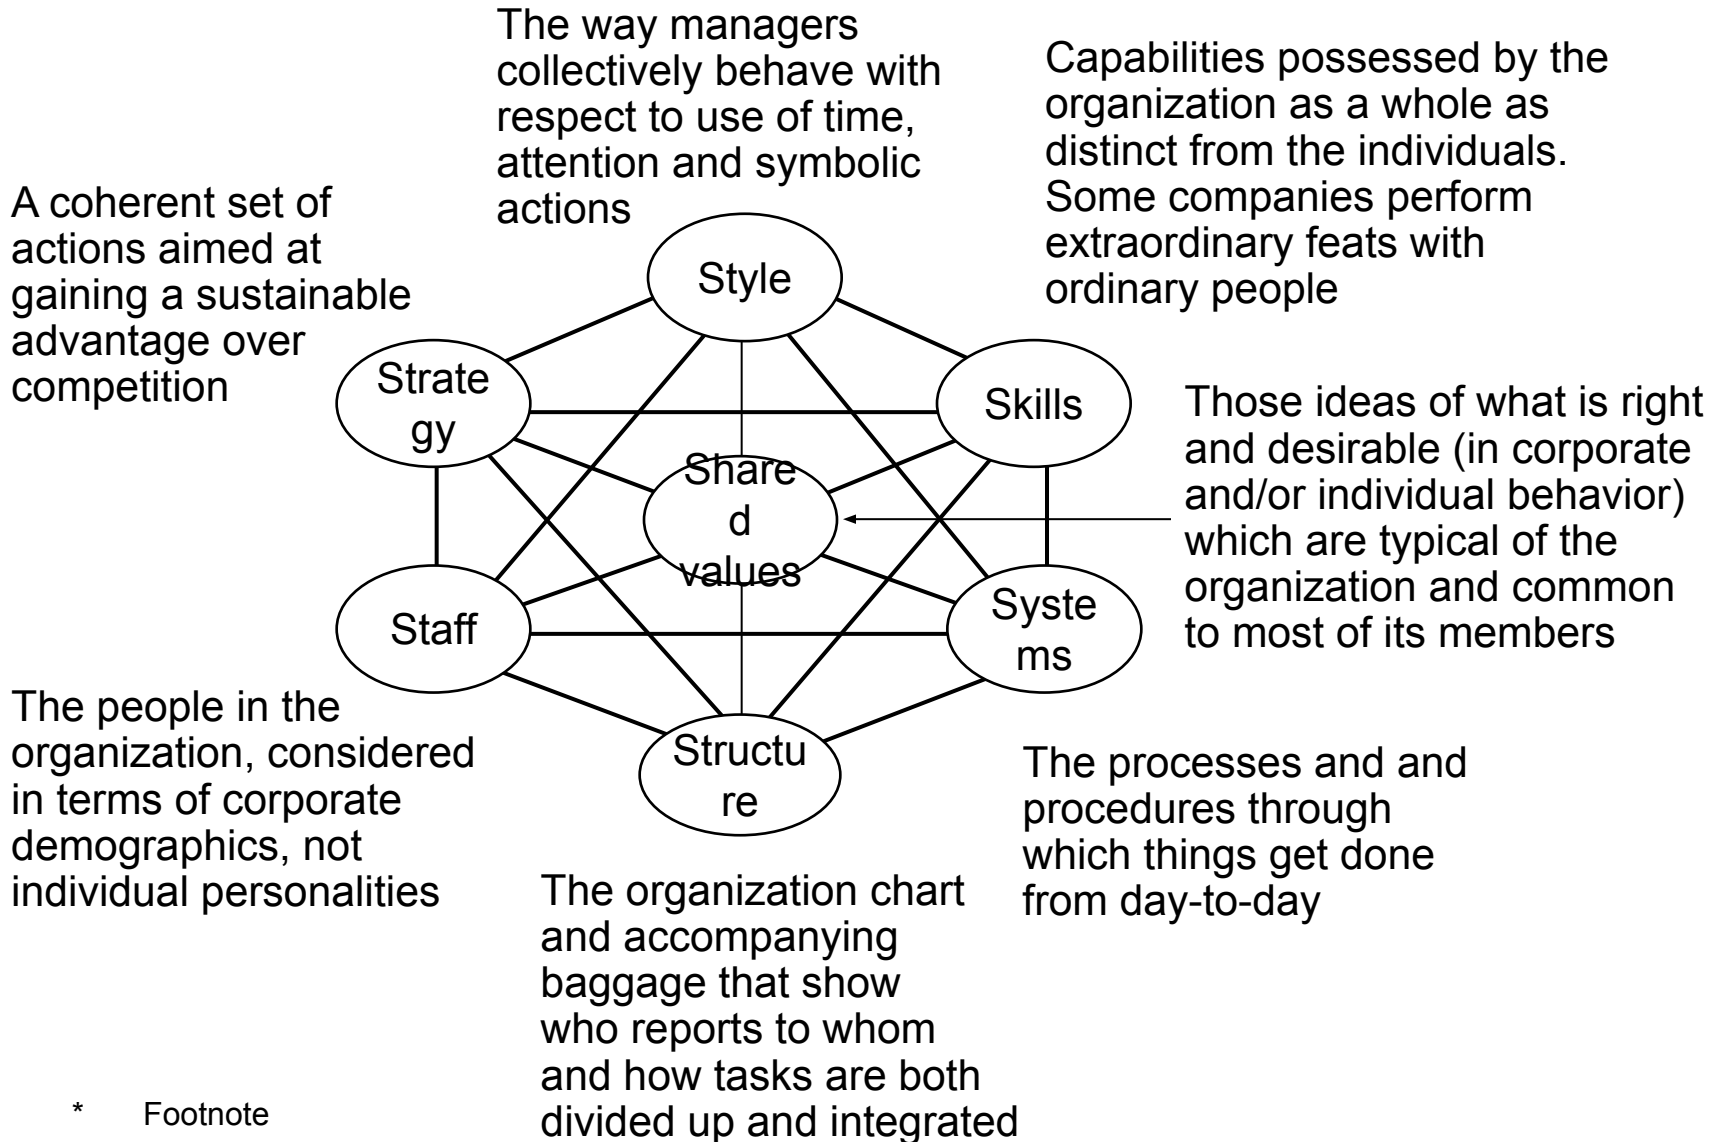

The way managers collectively behave with respect to use of time, attention and symbolic actions

The processes and procedures through which things get done from day-to-day
