The Flag of the USA

The thirteen-star, thirteen-stripe national flag of the United States of America was adopted on June 14, 1777. There was one star and one stripe for every state in the new country. Gradually, as new states were added to the Union, a new star was added to the national flag. There are now fifty stars on the American flag, one for each state. The thirteen stripes represent the original thirteen states.

National Anthem:
“The Star– Spangled Banner”

The national anthem of the USA was written during the war of 1812. In 1814 Francis Scott Key, an American lawyer wrote a poem titled "Defence of Fort McHenry" which could be sung to the tune of one popular song of that time. On September 20, 1814 the poem was published in the Baltimore newspaper. The song was caught on and everyone was singing it. In 1916 President Woodrow Wilson ordered that "The Star-Spangled Banner" would be played at all state occasions. In 1931 the Congress of the USA declared it the National Anthem.

The Star-Spangled Banner

Oh, say! Can you see, by the dawn's early light,
What so proudly we hailed at the twilight's last
gleaming,

Whose broad stripes and bright stars, through the
perilous fight,

O'er the ramparts we watched were so gallantly streaming?

And the rockets' red glare, the bombs bursting in air, Gave proof through the night that our flag was still there.

Oh, say, does that Star-Spangled Banner yet wave?

O'er the land of the free and home of the brave?

“America, the Beautiful!”

Many people wanted to make “America, the Beautiful” the national anthem instead of “The Star-Spangled Banner”, because it was not written as a result of a war. The tune is easier to sing, and the whole country is praised, not only the flag. “America, the Beautiful” was written by Katherine Lee Bates. She chose the music of a hymn by Samuel Ward. The words and music travelled around the world, and today Mexico, Canada and Australia sing it with their own countries’ names instead of “America”.

The origin of the word “America”

For a while after the first voyage of Columbus in 1492, America was called the “New World”. Later, it was decided by map-makers in Europe to name the New World after a man named Amerigo Vespucci.

AMERIC VESPUCCI

Amerigo Vespucci was an Italian merchant and adventurer who made three trips to the New World. Columbus became the first explorer to reach the mainland of South America in 1498, but Amerigo Vespucci soon wrote a book in which he claimed to have gone there in 1497. This was not true, but people did not know for many years that Amerigo Vespucci was lying.
