

Russians really love holidays. We usually celebrate them with a lot of food, presents and in big companies of relatives and friends.

There are three types of holidays in Russia.

They are family holidays, state (public, official) holidays and religious (church) holidays. Family holidays include birthdays, anniversaries, weddings, house-warming parties, new baby parties and others. Some pagan holidays are popular with Russians too.

Dec 31	New Year
January 7	Russian Orthodox Christmas
January 13 Eve	Russian Old New Year
February 23	The Motherland Defender's Day
March 8	International Women's Day
April, May	Easter (floating date): in 2011 - April 24; in 2012 April 15; in 2013 - May 5
May 1, 2	Labour Day
May 9	Victory Day
June 12	Russia Day or Independence Day
November 4	Day of People's Unity
February,	Shrovetide or Pancake Day (floating date): in 2011 -
March	March 7; in 2012 - February 26; in 2013 – March17
October 31	Halloween
February 14	St. Valentine's Day

- ... is a ... holiday.
- We celebrate it on the ... of ... (There is no exact date for ..., it is different every year. It is usually the last (the first)... of ...
- ... celebrates (marks) the end of.../ the beginning of.../ the victory of...in.../ the Independence of.../ the anniversary of.../ the new Constitution.
- ... is devoted to soldiers and officers / the Soviet Army / women. (We celebrate it in the honour of ...)
- The day makes us think of...
- ... has deep roots.
- ... was started by / in / as...(was connected with / is associated with / used to be celebrated as...

- Concerts / marches / parades / services in church / processions of veterans / demonstrations are held ...
- It takes time to make all the arrangements but it is worth many efforts. (give one's house a thorough cleaning, to decorate ... with ..., make fancy costumes, write and send post cards)
- People are involved in various activities.
- They congratulate ... on... / give presents to... / lay flowers at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier
- They go out into the streets
 participate /take part in all kinds of outdo
 - activities (in parades, shows, demonstrations,
 - fancy balls)
 - go to church and stay for service

come to one's parents / gather / get together go visiting each other / invite guests
 cook a special dinner / make paneakes
 (paskhas, Easter cakes, dye or paint eggs)

have parties, dance, have a carnival set off fire-crackers (The whole sky lights up with fire-works at midnight.)

knock on people's door, sing carols, collect gifts

burn a scarecrow

- People enjoy themselves / have fun / stay up late / stay up until midnight / sit at the table / have a great chat.
- The highlight of the festival is...

- 1. Can people do without celebrations?
- 2. What is your favourite old (new) holiday?
- 3. Do you feel sorry about the holidays that disappeared?
- 4. What new holidays would you like to establish?
- (For me choosing a present depends on what occasion it is / how close we are / how much money I have.

If..... it is supposed to be expensive / it could be hand-made.

It is the spirit behind the gift that matters most but not the gift itself.)

What point of view do you have on celebrations?

- Celebrating is my joy!
- I like the perfect / special atmosphere behind celebrations.
- I just enjoy the spirit of a holiday!
- I celebrate any holiday irrespective of its religious background.
- For me a holiday is a good opportunity to get together with my nearest and dearest / friends.

What point of view do you have on celebrations?

- I don't like any celebration especially. It's not important for me.
- For me any holiday is just a day-off.
- I don't understand the use of celebrating a holiday only because it's a tradition!
- We can choose more interesting activities instead of sitting at the table and discussing boring family problems.
- There's only one celebration that matters, it's...

