Living With Diabetes

Hi my name is Shannon and I am almost fourteen, and I will be going into 9th grade in the fall. I live in the USA in Pennsylvania. I really want someone who is around my age to talk to about diabetes. I don't really know anyone who is diabetic around here and sometimes I feel like I have no one who can relate to the challenges of being diabetic.

I was diagnosed at age four in November of 1999 which means I've had it for about ten years. I don't think I was told that I had diabetes right away just that I had to go to the hospital. When I said I was hungry I was horrified at a huge part of me.

Climbing the Summit Together

How did we get from having HIV activists chaining themselves to a desk in Burroughs Wellcome offices to having 65 HIV community activists travel from across the US to meet with GSK clinical and commercial leaders in Denver this year? It was not easy.

The cooperative relationship that GSK has developed with the HIV community over the last 20 years parallels the company's successes in helping support the battle against HIV. Successes like providing the first treatment for AIDS, developing an effective therapy to dramatically reduce mother-to-child transmission, and providing the first fixed-dose combination treatment for HIV were all brought to patients by GSK scientists.

We've found that sitting down and engaging in two-way conversations with activists was a critical and productive step in helping us understand the needs of our patients.

This year was the 11th HIV Summer Summit hosted by GSK. Sixty-five activists,
