God bless you all for your reslove and the will to fight for freedom. Do not give up. The price of freedom will be heavy, but your children will not always remember what their mothers and fathers did for their future.

Facebook Ikea

ИКЕА применила стандартные опции Facebook не по назначению

Открывая новый магазин в шведском городе Мальме, ИКЕА нуждалась в малобюджетной, но эффективной акции, для которой агентство Forsman & Bodenfors необычным образом использовало возможность помечать объекты на фотографиях в альбомах Facebook. Результаты превзошли все ожидания — акция привлекла тысячи людей, в том числе далеко за пределами Мальме.

Был создан профайл менеджера нового магазина Гордона Густавссона (Gordon Gustavsson). В одну из его галерей в течение двух недель загружались фотографии демонстрационных комнат магазина. Пользователям предлагалось оставлять метки со своим именем на понравившихся предметах. Первый, кто отметил вещь, выигрывал ее. Информация об акции распространялась через профайлы участников акции и их новостные ленты без особых усилий со стороны организаторов — когда пользователь Facebook помечает что-то на фотографии, заметка об этом попадает в его ленту новостей, которую видят на своих страницах все его друзья. Новые пользователи с нетерпением ждали добавления дополнительных комнат в альбом (и, значит, новых вещей). И массированно подключались.

На Facebook есть возможность оставлять метки на фотографиях в чужих галереях (в русскоязычной версии интерфейса это называется «отметить людей»). Если вы узнали себя или кого-нибудь из своих друзей на Facebook, то можете выделить лицо на фото и указать имя. Метка станет видна всем после того, как владелец фото утвердит ее. Эту опцию и использовало агентство.

The Women's Crisis

Glass ceilings aside, millions of women are prohibited from accomplishing little more than survival. Not because of a lack of ambition, or ability, but because of a lack of water. Millions of women and children in the developing world spend untold hours daily, collecting water from distant, often polluted sources, then return to their villages carrying their filled 40 pound jerry cans on their backs. And though women are responsible for the majority of food production in their villages, their productivity is severely limited by this constant struggle.

But the real tragedy is that the problem is so easy to solve. For just $25 water.org can provide clean, sustainable drinking water for one person for life, bringing opportunity, hope and possibilities to lives without them.

Calling on the Government of Vietnam to release imprisoned bloggers and respect Internet freedom.
Expressing Viewpoint On The Internet Should Not Be A Crime

The Vietnamese government seeks to emulate China's "Great Firewall" by creating a dynamic online censorship program through collaboration with internet service providers. Hanoi has indicated that it will ask Yahoo, Google, and Microsoft to help censor internet content and hand over private user information. As a counter action, 15 US Members of Congress have co-signed a letter to Yahoo/Google/Microsoft urging them to uphold internet freedom.

Congresswoman Loretta Sanchez (CA-47) has taken it to the next level by introducing a House resolution "Calling on the Government of Vietnam to release imprisoned bloggers and respect Internet freedom".

According to Reporters Sans Frontieres, Vietnam is among the worst countries when it comes to internet freedom. In October 2008, the government created a new entity, named the Administration Agency for Radio, Television and Electronics Information, to monitor the internet and control the flow of information from bloggers. The government also issued a new decree to tighten internet restrictions.

Please write to your representative and urge him/her to support this House Resolution H.Res. 672.

The screenshot shows the BBC Russian website with a news article titled "Одеколоны 'убивают россиян'" (Mouthwashes 'kill Russians'). The article discusses a study by Professor David Leon from the London School of Hygiene and Tropical Medicine, comparing data from 1750 men in Udmurtia, Russia, who died between 2003 and 2005. The study found that 40% of these men had consumed alcohol, which was often in the form of cheap and accessible mouthwashes. The article includes a photo of several bottles of mouthwash and a quote from Professor Leon: "Люди умирают от высокой концентрации алкоголя в дешевой и доступной форме" (People die from high concentrations of alcohol in cheap and accessible form).

Below the article is a poll titled "РЕЗУЛЬТАТЫ" (RESULTS) asking "Вы пьете одеколон, антифриз или моющие средства?" (Do you drink mouthwash, antifreeze, or cleaning products?). The poll results are as follows:

Response	Percentage
Регулярно (Regularly)	88.69%
Крайне редко (Very rarely)	0.91%
Никогда (Never)	6.33%
Я вообще не пью (I don't drink at all)	4.08%

The poll also indicates that 100,630 people voted, and that the poll is not an official survey. Below the poll are links to related materials on the topic, such as "Пиво как альтернативный источник энергии" (Beer as an alternative energy source) and "Табак и алкоголь более опасны, чем наркотики" (Tobacco and alcohol are more dangerous than drugs).

Активистки FEMEN выступили против сексуального шантажа в украинских вузах

В понедельник, 16 ноября, активистки эпатажного женского движения FEMEN провели под стенами Министерства образования и науки Украины свою новую акцию под названием А-та-та.

Новым действием они хотели привлечь внимание украинской общественности к аморальным вещам, творящимся в высших учебных заведениях Украины. По мнению движения FEMEN, представители вузов, используя свой статус, прибегают к сексуальному шантажу студенток в обмен на успешные оценки и жилье в общежитии.

Во время акции девушки показали небольшое представление, которым продемонстрировали, как украинские студентки вынуждены будут сдавать экзамены и зачеты. Участниц акции, игравших роль студенток, отшлепали по пятой точке парни в образе преподавателей вузов.

Open Letter

Ever feel that a letter to your Rep or Senator goes unheeded? Well that's where OpenLetter comes in. Just copy openletter@openmass.org when you send an email to your Rep, Senator and even Governor Patrick and it will be posted to their profile page and on any bill page that you reference. Letters submitted will be posted each weekend starting on Dec 1st. It's that simple, well almost. There are a couple rules of the road that must be followed.

Rules of the Road:

1. You must copy (cc) OpenMass in your email communication with your legislator or the Governor. Sorry, no paper submissions and no letters from State House staff.
2. As with all open letters you must identify yourself (name, address and tel# or email address) and leave contact information. (We reserve the right to verify you). Your email address will be used for verification purposed only and not given to any organizations businesses etc...
3. You must respectfully put forth your position. Please do send letters of praise as well.

Congress in the news: updated 05/29/2007 17:36 PM EDT

- House Speaker Nancy Pelosi (D-Calif.) applauded President Bush's decision to tighten sanctions against the Sudanese government for refusing to comply with United Nations demands that it halt the ongoing genocide in the country's Darfur region. (The Hill story)
- Rep. Gary Miller (R-Calif.), facing allegations that he used his office to favor certain businesses and individuals, adopted a new rule requiring that any city requesting his help in delivering federal funds first certify that it is for the benefit of the community, and not any other specific entity. (Whittier Daily News story)
- Sen. Jeff Sessions (R-Ala.), a longtime supporter of the Iraq War, said this weekend that he is open to the idea of withdrawing some U.S. troops from the country later this year. (The Hill article)
- Both the House and Senate passed an Iraq supplemental spending bill which does not include timetables or recommendations for U.S. troop withdrawal. (The Hill story)
- The Senate will hold a "no confidence" vote on Attorney General Alberto Gonzales

From the Editors:

TheWeekInCongress \(May 21-25, 2007\)

May 25, 2007

It was an eventful week on Capitol Hill, as many high-profile issues were debated and considered in both the House and Senate. Each chamber tackled legislation regarding the Iraq War, while the Senate began consideration of a comprehensive immigration bill. For an in-depth look at the bills considered in Congress since Monday, we again turn to Robert McElroy's TheWeekInCongress. His site is a great resource for citizens wishing to keep track of what their members are up to in Washington, and we urge you to check it out. Follow the headlines below to the Congresspedia articles covering the respective issues, which in turn link to and heavily rely on McElroy's analyses.

- Both the House and Senate passed a supplemental spending bill which would fund the Iraq War through fiscal year (FY) 2007 (ending Sept. 30). The bill contains no timetables or recommendations for U.S. troop withdrawal.

WITNESS uses video and online technologies to open the eyes of the world to human rights violations

Rights Alert:
Bound by Promises
Contemporary Slavery in Rural Brazil
 Every year, over 25,000 workers are enslaved in rural Brazil. Trapped by debt bondage on isolated ranches in the Amazon region, they are forced to do backbreaking work and live in dismal conditions. With no way out, they toil to buy back their freedom.

What's McConnell Hiding?

What's Senator Mitch McConnell hiding?

He is hiding his and other senators' campaign finance information by blocking legislation that would require electronic reporting.

As Senate Minority Leader, he is also hiding the identity of an anonymous Republican senator whose objections to "The Senate Campaign Disclosure Parity Act" \(S. 223\) have stymied efforts to give the public more information on sources of campaign contributions in the Senate.

The irony in this situation is that there is a secret objection to legislation that would generate more transparency for senators.

Now is your chance to put the pressure on to move the transparency bill forward.

Your name:

Your email:

UK postcode:

(for example OX1 3DR)

If you enter your details, we'll add you to a queue of other people in your constituency. When enough have signed up, your MP will get sent an email. It'll say "25 of your constituents would like to hear what you're up to. Hit reply to let them know". If they don't reply, nothing will happen, until your MP gets a further email which says there are now 50, then 75, 100, 150 – until it is nonsensical not to reply and start talking.

When your MP sends you mail it won't be one-way spam, and it won't be an inbox-filling free-for-all. Instead, each email comes with a link at the bottom, which takes you straight to a web page containing a copy of the email your MP wrote, along with any comments by other constituents. To leave your thoughts, you just enter your text and hit enter. There's no tiresome login – you can just start talking about what they've said. Safe, easy and democratic.

Eventful demands

While each campaign is trying to galvanize its support base, something new is happening online: grassroots supporters of the candidates are using a new tool from Eventful.com, an events database, to request, or "demand" in Eventful's parlance, that the candidate come to their city. So far, only Ron Paul has directly responded to this bottom-up aggregation of voter attention, but several have adopted their Eventful pages. Could this be the first sign of "candidate-relationship management" from below? These graphs chart the total number of demands expressed for each candidate so far.

Democrats

Democrat	# of demands
Obama	25,232
Clinton	6,516
Edwards	3,979
Kucinich	132
Biden	91
Richardson	42
Dodd	3
