NIKE FREE TR FIT

The Free TR Fit is designed with a lower environmental impact using environmentally preferred rubber, water-based cementing and recycled polyester. That means every step in the multi-directional flex groove outsole replicates the foot's natural movement and helps women get more out of their workout without leaving a huge environmental footprint. Everyone's a winner.

Each Nike 2010 World Championship Football jersey is made entirely from recycled polyester. That's up to eight recycled plastic bottles per jersey. In total, that diverted nearly 13 million plastic bottles from landfills. Yes, you read right. 13 million. Plastic. Bottles.

hand, was used to signal the beginning and end of sailors' watches: the bell would be struck once every half-hour and twice every full hour, with four double strikes signalling the end of a watch. The abstract concept of time was thus being converted into acoustic tones even back then. In the Portuguese Minute Repeater, depressing the slide causes a delicate strike train to sound the time out audibly in hours, quarters and minutes. In 2009, the case was replaced by a 98950-calibre hunter pocket watch movement, and some of the stylish elements of the early Jones calibres were adopted. A number of these, such as the elongated index, the balance with its high-precision adjustment cam and the distinctively decorated nickel-silver plate and bridge with gold-plated engravings, can be seen through the transparent sapphire-glass back. Both versions are limited to 500 watches.

What WE DO

SERVICES

We guide and support companies developing websites and web applications along the winding and sometimes rocky road that leads to online performance and success. Here is how we do this.

Interested to discuss your project?

You are developing a website or web application; or you are revamping the current one in order to improve its adoption rates and stickiness. As the first step you'd like to better understand your users: who they are; what their needs and motivations are; how they behave.

We provide user research and usability testing services to help you better understand and picture your users.

You are developing a website or web application and you'd like to crystallize its strategy and requirements.

Working closely with you we'll help you define a clear product strategy: user engagement techniques, feature roadmap, content strategy, design guidelines, etc. Being crystal clear about your objectives is the foundational element towards your success.
