Crimea*

A painting depicting a coastal landscape. In the foreground, two prominent, gnarled cypress trees stand on a rocky, grassy slope. Their trunks are thick and textured, with some peeling bark. The foliage is dense and green, with some yellowish-green highlights. In the background, a deep blue sea stretches to the horizon under a clear sky. The overall style is characteristic of 19th-century landscape painting, with a focus on naturalistic detail and atmospheric perspective.
