

The word York derives from the Latinised name for the city, variously rendered as Eboracum, Eburacum or Eburaci. The first mention of York by this name is dated to circa 95–104 AD.

The form York was first recorded in the 13th century. Many company and place names, such as the Ebor race meeting, refer to the Roman name.

