

George Seurat. 2nd December of 1859 - 29 March 1891. Attended the School of Fine Arts. Then he served in the army in Brest. In 1880 he returned to Paris. In search of his own style in art, he invented the so-called pointillism — an artistic technique for transmitting shades and colors using individual color dots.

The lyrical hero [the artist] feels uncomfortable among people.
Seurat talked about interpersonal relationships and The flaws of society that led to the depression of the hero.

Also, through his paintings, he tries to convey that the world is imperfect, people have lost any notion of eternal values, are mired in idleness, all they are interested in is fashion and Sunday walks

This way he makes us understand that the world is imperfect and we have to accept it as it is , but not to become like the majority, but to devote ourselves to something - for example , art . He also wonders if anything will change in 100 - 200 years?

That's the end of it, thank you all. Be yourself .
