Going abroad nowadays is a usual thing for many families. Some people, however, stay unsatisfied with the time they have spent in a foreign country. What are the advantages and disadvantages of traveling abroad or is it worth staying at home? One of the main advantages is the experience you get from being in a foreign country. While being abroad you have the opportunity to practise the language and socialise with citizens of the country you visit. This is especially beneficial if your occupation is connected with a foreign language. Furthermore, you get acquainted with new people and that makes you relax and forget about your routine life.

Tourism for all

On the other hand, pretravelling process might be very depressing because of all the documents you should collect in order to enter the chosen country. What is more, you can get into trouble if you are not acquainted with the laws of the country you want to visit. What you are used to doing at home is not always normal for foreigners. Or you can also stay unsatisfied if the country you have chosen does not fit your expectations. To sum up, it seems that international tourism is a good way of having a rest, but do not be upset if there are some problems with getting a visa. However, it must be remembered that if you think positively your holidays are going to be terrific!

Others that are near large lakes or rivers provide an opportunity for sports: fishing, as well as water skiing. Some areas also have the possibility for scuba or deep sea diving, rafting, canoeing, surfing, parachuting or sailing. Some even dive for lost treasures or explore wrecked ships.

The others prefer just relaxing. They mostly lie on the beach and sunbathe, breathing sea or ocean air.
