

Red Book of Udmurtia

Loshkarev Stepan, Dushutin Anton,
Lapshonkov Bogdan

Wolverine

In the 1930s there were a lot of wolverines in Udmurtia. But then forests were cut down here, and the number of individuals decreased sharply. Today they are found very rarely - and only in the northern regions of Udmurtia. The wolverine is a large representative of the family of the fowl. The body length of the animal reaches 105 centimeters, and its weight - up to 21 kilograms.

Sapsan

Peregrine falcons in the non-breeding period fly to populated areas and hunt pigeons, and during nesting they can occasionally be found on the hard-to-reach precipitous banks of the Kama River.

Peregrine Falcon is a large falcon, its size reaches half a meter, and its wingspan is up to 120 centimeters.

Onion skoroda

Skoroda onion used to be found in several districts of Udmurtia in transitional and key bogs. Today it is found only in three districts, in an area of no more than 30 square meters, although it grows there quite a lot: up to 500 plants in the whole area.

