- Among      beyond      instead of      regarding up
- Apart from      but      into      round      upon
- Around      by      like      since      with

Followed by a Noun

- A preposition is usually followed by a noun.
- It is never followed by a verb.
- By “nouns” we include:
  - » Proper nouns (dog, Chris)
  - » Pronouns (he, she, they)
  - » Noun group ( my first job)
  - » Gerund (swimming)

Nouns and Prepositions

Prepositions are sometimes so firmly wedded to other words that they practically become one word. This occurs in three categories: nouns, adjectives, and verbs.

- I have a love for dogs.
- Chrissy has a Fondness for Beagles.
- Some people have a hatred towards dogs.
- I hope for a new puppy.
- He has an interest in dogs.

Adjectives and Prepositions

- He looked afraid of swimming.
- He was fond of the lake.
- She is interested in swimming.
- She was sorry for splashing the people.
- She was tired of treading water.

Verbs and Prepositions

- John apologized for his mistake.
- Matt had to ask for a pass back to class.
- I study for my Spanish test.
Find out the truth.
- I work for a mean person.
- Look for my news paper please.
