Canon

Canon is a multinational engineering company headquartered in Tokyo. It is engaged in the optical-mechanical and electronic production of devices for capturing, processing and printing images, as well as the development of solutions in the field of information technology and broadcasting

Company history

The company was founded in 1933, under the leadership of Saburo Uchida and Goro Yoshida, which initially specialized in the production and development of cameras. Two years later the Canon trademark was registered, but it did not become part of the company name until 1947.
