Christopher Columbus

TIMELINE

- 1451 Christopher Columbus is born in Genoa, Italy.
- 1492 Columbus sails his first voyage to America with three small ships, the Niña, the Pinta, and the Santa María. The quest returns on his second voyage to the West Indies a second time.
- 1493 With successive ships and 1,500 men Columbus explores the West Indies.
- 1494 After finishing a voyage on Hispaniola, Columbus explores the West Indies.
- 1498 On Columbus's third voyage from Spain to the New World, he becomes the first European to set foot in South America.
- 1499 On his last voyage, Columbus explores the coast of Central America while searching for a passage to the Indian Ocean.
- 1506 Columbus dies May 20 in Valladolid, Spain.

In 1492, Christopher Columbus, an Italian adventurer, set sail for India. He never reached his destination. Instead, he encountered a whole new world — the Americas. Columbus's discovery opened up the New World to Europe. Within a brief time, European claimed and colonized many parts of North, Central, and South America, and the West Indies. They colonized brought great wealth to Europe and changed forever the history of Europe and the Americas.

Columbus believed he could reach Asia by sailing west across the Atlantic, but it took years for him to find someone to give him the money. Many rich and powerful men of the 15th century had a good idea of how large the world was, and they knew that Columbus was underestimating the distance among the western coast of the Americas. For this reason, they thought Columbus was foolish to sail west to reach the Indies. Not one realized, however, that vast great continents also separated Europe from the East. Finally, King Ferdinand and Queen Isabella of Spain gave Columbus their ship, and he set sail into the uncharted seas of the Atlantic. After the weeks of sea, a rich sighted land — an island in the Bahamas that Columbus called San Salvador. Columbus decided the island must be near India, so he called the people he found there "Indians." Searching for gold and other riches, Columbus explored many islands in the Caribbean sea. Then he sailed back to Spain, bringing some of the crops of a land an impossible sea island near the island Cuba (Haiti) and the Dominican Republic. The men returned and other than the riches, Columbus returned the next year with 2,000 Spanish soldiers and found that Indians had killed the Spaniards to kill Isabel and burned her body.

Columbus then founded a colony, settled with an Hispaniola and determined that being his gold. The settlers were Spanish soldiers who hoped to become wealthy in the New World. They gave little about the small amount of gold found on the island. Columbus tried to quiet the Spaniards by giving them food and bring them under a colony to work it. Columbus also sent letters back to Spain to the king and queen, fighting a struggle between Spanish and Spaniards. He then left to make America while Indians had been European.

On his fourth and last voyage, Columbus searched for a passage to India. He planned, if his quest was successful, to sail around the world to return home. He ran into the Gulf Stream, and his voyage ended his ship, making him unsuccessful. The explorers and his crew were shipwrecked by present day Jamaica, where they waited for more than a year before Spanish ships. Shipwrecked toward Cuba, Columbus finally returned to Spain, where he spent the end of his life.
